SPEED SECOND FRONT PLANS

JOIN RANKS OF NAVY FLYING CADETS TODAY

11 Youths From Mansfield Area Already Sworn In; Others Take Tests.

HOUR EXTENDED

Board Remains Open Until 9 Tonight to Interview Those From Factories.

With 11 Mansfield area youths already sworn in as naval aviation cadets, a number of others were going through physical and flight aptitude tests today at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Lieut. John Crawford of the traveling naval aviation cadet selection board of Columbus, said that hours for the examinations were being extended to 9 p. m. today to accommodate workers from Mansfield industrial plants who have indicated they wish to apply for entrance.

The first two Mansfield cadets approved by the traveling unit were William A. Herpich, 66 North Weldon avenue, and George J. Murray, Mansfield R. D. 5. These men will go to Columbus tonight to take their final examinations.

Most of the youths taking tests at the hotel today were among the 400 persons who heard Lieut. Crawford explain the need for additional aviation cadets at a Naval Aviation night meeting last night in the auditorium of John Simpson Junior high school.

Lieut. Crawford told his audience last night that the United States was increasing its plane production at such a rate that it was imperative to find hundreds of new pilots. He promised any applicants they would "fly the best fighting planes in the world and will have received the most thorough aviation training."

The speaker estimated the monetary value of the program to an individual cadet at $22,000 He reminded his audience that the youth of today would be part of a new "sky" generation after the war and that specialized training will give it a "head start."

The talk was given following a parade by members of the McVey post, American Legion, drum corps and the Mansfield squadron

Diphtheria 'Shots' Ordered For All School Children

All pupils attending Mansfield public schools during the term beginning in September must be immunized against diphtheria before the opening of school.

That was the ruling adopted last night by the board of education at the request of Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner. The order was made by a unanimous vote of the board.

Dr. Wild twice requested the board to require immunization, emphasizing in a recent request that the war is calling many of the city's doctors and nurses and the possibility of a diphtheria epidemic next winter will be much greater.

Parents of all pupils will be asked to provide for the inoculation of their school-age children before the opening of the new term. The order applies to pupils from the first grade through Senior high school. No provisions was made for the schools to bear the cost of immunization.

The board several years ago set up a ruling requiring pupils to be vaccinated against smallpox. The action was taken then during a threatened epidemic which was brought under control.

Is Mansfield Standing Still While Two Neighboring Cities Surpass It By Going 'All Out' on War Work?

MANSFIELDERS have been used to hearing their town called "an outstanding American city."

It sounded pretty good—but that was before the war.

Since then, Mansfield hasn't been very outstanding.

Industrial employment is off, and conversion to war work isn't yet accomplished.

Business generally is off—every index points that way.

Meanwhile, in neighboring Marion, smaller than Mansfield, business hums briskly. For Marion has a war plant under construction—with 3,800 men building it.

In slightly more distant Newark, also smaller than Mansfield, construction work on a $22,000,000 war plant is scheduled to start Aug. 1.

Marion will soon be on its way to passing Mansfield in population and industrial importance. Newark will be doing the same thing.

How did these two cities get their war plants? What effort have they made that Mansfield did not make? Can we catch up? Is a war factory an advantage or a disadvantage to a city? What will happen to them after the war?

To find out, the News-Journal has assigned John M. Schroeder, its city editor, to visit both Newark and Marion, to report on present conditions in those two cities and their outlook for the future, to compare conditions there with those in Mansfield.

The first article of a series that should prove of vital interest—and importance—to all Mansfielders, will appear tomorrow.

PAY HIKE, COST INCREASE JUMPS SCHOOL BUDGET

Request Goes Up $47,705 With $647,184 Being Sought For 1943 Operations.

Needing more funds to meet pay increases granted two months ago and rising operation costs, the Mansfield board of education last night voted a budget request for $647,184 for operation of the city schools in 1943. This figure does not provide for bond and interest payments.

The request is $47,705 more than the board was allowed and appropriated for this year. The amount requested for operations this year was $604,049 of which $599,479 was granted by the county budget commission.

The total request for 1943, including operation costs and bond and interest payments, amounts to $732,401. The total amount sought for 1942 was $712,507. Of that amount, $707,938 was granted.

Nearly $32,000 of the increase the board seeks for 1943 represents $90 annual pay increases granted teachers, principals, and school employes last May and increments which will be paid teachers under a previous plan.

Harold Bruce, chairman of the board's budget committee, said the rest of the increase will be needed to meet the higher cost of materials and to finance repairs to school buildings.

The new budget calls for a total of $439,316 for the salaries of teachers, principals, supervisors and clerks next year. In the same fund this year the board set up $412,277.

The 1943 request for administration services, including the salaries of the superintendent, superintendent of buildings, their clerks, and legal services, amounts

VACATION SET?

Washington Hears Congress To Adjourn Until Sept. 1.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Reports spread through the Capitol today that President Roosevelt may inform congress that it may adjourn until Sept. 1 with his permission.

It was said that Majority Leader Barkley planned to introduce an adjournment resolution immediately upon reference of the $6,250,000,000 new war tax bill to the senate finance committee. Only members of the committee would thus stay in Washington and make a report of the tax bill for submission when the house and senate again assembled.

With most primaries being held by the states in August, senators and representatives alike have been anxious to go back home and fix their political fences.

JUST A RUMOR

Army Says West Coast Parachutist Landing Without Foundation.

SAN FRANCISCO —(U.P.)— The western defense command said today the report of a "parachutist" landing near the desert town of Lancaster, Calif., apparently was without foundation.

The army reported that investigation "has failed to disclose any evidence of such an incident." Report of the supposed landing came from Curtis Peeveler, 14, farm boy. He said he saw a large plane over the desert and that a parachutist and flare seemed to drop from it.

FIVE KILLED

Army Air Force Fliers Die When Bomber Crashes In California.

FRESNO, Cal. —(INS)— Military authorities announced today the death of five U. S. army air force members in the crash of a bomber five miles northwest of Visalia, Cal. Those killed were Lieuts. Dwight W. Harrelson and Omer D. Carnutte, Corps. Clois E. Hawkins and Pvts. James H. Dutrich and Paul G. Wright.

SPEED TRAINING OF AIR WARDENS

400 Expected To Be Enrolled In First Aid Soon; First Post To Be Set Up Soon.

With close to 400 Mansfield air raid wardens due to be actively enrolled in first aid training by next week the city's air defense organization began preparations today toward the establishment of air raid wardens posts in each one of the city's 120 sectors.

The first offer of a location for one of the posts was made to Ralph Hughes, Senior warden in Ward 1, Walter Beckley, local manager of the Cities Service Oil company. Beckley offered the use of an idle filling station at the intersection of Lexington and Sturges avenues as a post of Sector 2, Precinct K.

Locations for other sectors will be sought as soon as the wardens have completed their training, Atty. Glenn W. Marriott, chief air raid warden for Mansfield, said.

First aid training is already un-

SECOND RAID

German Plane Bombs British Ship Off Coast Of Iceland.

A PORT IN ICELAND—(INS)—For the second time during the summer a United Nations vessel has been bombed off the coast of Iceland, an official communique disclosed today. It said a British trawler was bombed late last Saturday afternoon by a German plane but, as in the earlier attack, escaped without damage.

'V' AWARDS

Homes And Businesses To Receive Civilian Defense Certificates.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— The office of civilian defense today directed local OCD officials to award "V" certificates to homes and business establishments which "are participating in the total war offensive and making necessary air raid precautions."

The awards were created as part of a survey ordered by OCD Director James M. Landis to determine the extent to which homes and businesses are cooperating in the government's conservation, salvage, bond sale and defense efforts.

DIG UP STEEL

WPA Workers to Remove More Old Car Tracks.

Salvage of steel rails for munitions to mutilate the Axis powers will be resumed by Mansfield WPA workers Friday when they begin digging out tracks of the old city railway system on Springmill street and East Fourth street.

"It is anticipated that approximately 150 tons of steel will be realized," Service Director Fred B. Wolff said today. More than 400 tons of rails were turned over to government representatives some time ago.

Rails remain in the pavement in the vicinity of the old car barns and on Springmill street beyond Bowman street. The salvage operations will require a week or more.

Breaks Into Home Twice, First To Eat And Then To Smoke

Jelly sabotage enters the crime list reported to Mansfield police.

Henry Schmidt, 435 Fourth avenue, reported that on Sunday night a ransacker gained entrance to his home by cutting screen from a rear door. Jelly sandwiches and meat were stolen from the icebox.

On Monday night the thief, his appetite for jelly and meat apparently sated, returned for cigarets and took also a pair of glasses belonging to Mrs. Schmidt. Entrance was gained by cutting away a rear window screen.

Finger prints found on several objects in the Schmidt home are being studied by the police identification bureau.

VOTE TO STRIKE

AFL Would Tie Up Naval Projects Totaling $100,000,000.

NEW YORK — (AP) — A strike which would tie up all naval construction work in the metropolitan area, involving work costing $100,000,000, was voted yesterday by representatives of 26 crafts affiliated with the Bronx board of business agents of the building and construction council trades council (AFL).

ACT TOMORROW ON 'SHARE-RIDE' PLAN FOR CITY

War Transportation Committee to Meet; War Workers' Tires To Be Discussed.

Plans for the formation of a "share-ride" program and for the rationing of recapped and special "war worker" new tires will be discussed at a meeting of Mansfield's war transportation committee tomorrow at 7 p. m. in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

C. K. Smaltz, chairman of the committee which is connected with the city's civilian defense organization, said today that all members of the general committee would meet with James Bailey, secretary of the local rationing board, and with Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, chairman of civilian defense.

The committee is expected to formulate plans to get Mansfield residents and workers to organize themselves in a "share-ride" campaign to help conserve tires. It will also begin the organization of industrial committees within Mansfield plants to pass judgment on "war workers" applications for recapped tires or a new No. 2 tire especially designed by the government to help transport war workers.

Smaltz, who was appointed chairman of the transportation committee last week, said that he had been appointed by Mayor W. J. Locke to serve as local administrator of vital war transportation. Smaltz said the position was created upon the request of Dr. J. B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation. He said he had received no details of the functions of his new office as yet.

Bailey said that the county had been assigned 33 of the new "war worker" tires for July and that it was important to have a rationing program set up immediately because none of the quota can be carried over for use in August.

TESTIFIES TODAY

Mae West's Husband To Bare Marriage in Court.

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Frank Wallace, a vaudeville dancer who married Mae West in Milwaukee way back when, got his chance today to tell in court a story he said he had kept secret for more than 30 years.

Hoofer Wallace was to relate the story yesterday but his lawyer, Samuel E. Kamens, had a toothache and was unable to appear. Wallace pleaded for a month's continuance, and got one day.

Wallace is asking $1,000 a month separate maintenance. Miss West's cross-complaint seeks a divorce on the ground of cruelty.

SEEK SUSPECT

Posse of 200 Officers, Civilians Hunt Murderer of Ohioan.

DAYTON—(U.P.)—A posse of 200 officers and armed civilians played hide-and-seek early today with a man wanted for the holdup murder of Everett De Weese at Alexandersville, O., last Saturday.

The posse plodded through two square miles of Bear creek bottom lands, south of Dayton, during the night. Several times they saw their quarry but each time he dodged out of sight in the brush.

Navy Investigates Explosion At Research Laboratory.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Naval authorities today were investigating the exploding of a bomb fuse in the Naval Magazine and Research laboratory at Bellevue, D. C., last night, killing one man and injuring five women employes, two seriously.

Only minor damage was caused to the building in which the explosion, the second this year, occurred. In February three persons were killed in the laboratory.

British, U.S. Officer Confer On Aid to Reds

Russians Continue To Fall Back In South But Hammer At Nazi Flank Around Voronezh; Rostov In Flames, Say Germans.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill was understood today to have advised King George in detail of British and American discussions regarding aid to the hard-pressed armies of the Soviet Union, especially in connection with the possibility of opening an Allied second front.

(By Associated Press)

As the Russians fell back fighting from at least one thrust of Germany's Caucasus offensive and attempted to smash its Voronezh flank, United States and British staff officers were reported today to be studying the possibility of an immediate limited diversion on the continent. A London informant said that the problem was to give prompt, diversionary assistance if the situation in southern Russia, already grave, deteriorates further.

Since a full-fledged invasion of the continent seemed unlikely this summer, it appeared that the American and British strategists, in continuing "second front" conferences, were mapping a small scale action which would pull German forces out of Russia and at the same time safeguard communications with Russia.

Prime Minister Churchill met with this strategy council.

As the Allies deliberated, the German high command proclaimed that its forces had advanced another 50 miles on the way across the Don bend area toward Stalingrad and that Rostov, front gate to the Caucasus, was in flames and the focus of attack from three directions.

Rostov's bridges across the Don estuary have been smashed, the Berlin communique said.

The Russians have admitted only a threat to Rostov from the Donets basin to the north but the Germans claim to be driving also from the east, after a half-encirclement which they said reached the lower Don, and from the west, or Taganrog area, along the Sea of Azov.

Indirectly illustrating the plight of Russia's war industry, Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, said that Russians retreating from the Donets basin had left coal mines there in ruins.

The Egyptian front, Mediterranean bastion of the Allied liaison through the Middle East with Russia's Caucasus lines, was comparatively quiescent following fierce engagements which forced an Axis withdrawal on the southern extension of the El Alamein line.

At Russia's rear, in a "second front" area not of Allied choosing, the Japanese were said by a British source to have nearly completed preparations to attack the Siberian maritime province and Vladivostok

This informant said that the

SEA TOLL: Axis Subs Boost Atlantic Ship Losses To 390

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The navy announced today that a medium-sized United States merchant vessel had been torpedoed by an enemy submarine in the Caribbean. Survivors have landed at east coast and gulf coast ports.

(By Associated Press)

Undersea raiders were credited by the navy yesterday with having picked off four more merchantmen in the western Atlantic recently but they also were pictured as having "missed the boat" during big transatlantic convoy operations last winter.

After announcing the recent torpedo sinkings of three American cargo vessels and a small Swedish merchantman, the navy disclosed that a single task force had escorted 2,400 merchant craft across the North Atlantic last winter with a loss of only eight ships.

The four sinkings announced yesterday, together with a fifth reported in dispatches from a Yucatan (Mexico) port, put at 390 the unofficial Associated Press tabulation of Allied and neutral wartime merchant vessel losses in the western Atlantic.

Seventy-seven seamen were killed or missing and 130 rescued in the newly-announced attacks.

The three U. S. victims were a medium-sized craft torpedoed off the northern coast of South America June 29, a small cargo carrier sunk several hundred miles off the U. S. east coast on an unannounced date and another small merchantman sunk 450 miles off the east coast June 18.

The Swedish ship was torpedoed 800 miles from the northern coast of South America, while Yucatan reported the loss in the Caribbean July 20 of the Panamanian freighter Tachira.

SCORE: U. S. Bombers Sink 2 Jap Ships In Kiukiang Raid

(By Associated Press)

CHUNGKING—Fighter-escorted United States bombers sank two Japanese ships yesterday at the Yangtze river port of Kiukiang, southeast of Hankow, in a raid which challenged Japan's long-held control of the air over her waterway supply route into China.

Not one of the United States planes was damaged, said a communique from the headquarters of Lieut Gen Joseph W. Stilwell. It said the Japanese ships were of 1,000 to 2,000 tons each.

Presaging an ever-increasing aerial challenge to the invaders, a Chinese government spokesman said the United States would be asked through Laughlin Currie, special adviser to President Roosevelt, for more planes, along with a "rather long list" of other military supplies.

Currie returned to China July 16 with a message of undisclosed contents from President Roosevelt to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

Gen. Cheng Tsch-Jen, director of conscription, said China had the manpower to carry out a plan calling up 2,000,000 new soldiers a year for the next three years to put those arms, and other of her own production, to use against the Japanese.

In land fighting, a Chinese army spokesman reported the Japanese had fought their way back into the

Cadet Military Training In City's Schools Under Study

A committee representing the McVey American Legion, last night asked the Mansfield board of education to authorize the establishment of Legion Cadet military training classes in the schools during the next school term.

The board took the plan under advisement and requested Superintendent of Schools W. L. Miller to ask the state department of education whether the classes could be offered for school credits and as a part of the physical education program.

Committee members who spoke briefly in behalf of the training were Sam V. Fox, Legion commander; John W. Graham, and Lydon Beam.

Pointing out that 185 boys from 16 to 19 are already receiving training as Legion Cadets in Mansfield, the committee proposed that the training be offered two hours a week as a part of the school's physical education program.

Fox said the training would be voluntary and it would include coordination exercises and drills. There would be no charge and no uniforms would be required. Some of the older boys now receiving training would be instructors and a committee from the Legion post would supervise the course.

Committee members said they knew of no other school in Ohio in which the Legion training for youths is being offered. The Legion here has sponsored training outside the schools for the past eight weeks.

CHAPTER VII

Gordon went to Cora's tiny dressing room later—was introduced by the manager as "Brad" Lewis—writer guy."

She offered him a warm, moist hand—asked him to sit on a trunk while she greased her face and wiped off colorful make-up. She combed her dark red hair straighter, threw a blue robe over her costume—turned to him.

She was less flamboyant now—but her brown eyes set in her pale face were wise, and the thin lines by her eyes, and wide lips spoke experience, as if time had clawed her.

"There's a drink for you, Mr. Lewis." She poured him whisky and water. "Well, what shall I talk about?"

Lifting the glass in her direction Gordon smiled and answered "I want to do a piece on you—color, pep, warmth. You put on a great show. I liked it."

"Thank you. You seem to mean that. Don't be surprised if I'm a lot different in here from what I was out on the floor. That was my business, you know. The minute my act is over—I'm just myself, and that's a different story. Go ahead, shoot the third degree to me, Mr. Lewis, and I'll sing my words to your tune."

The room was warm, sweet with powder and perfume. Gordon walked over to her, placed one finger on the back of her smooth pink hand with the aviation-red nails.

"First off," he said, "suppose you call me 'Brad.'—This is going to be a sort of serial. It won't finish out tonight—I'll need other sessions with you—do you mind?"

She gazed at him, silent a moment. Her lips parted in a half smile, and she said, "Not at all, Brad, I'm glad it's going to be like that."

During the next week Cora proved she had meant that remark. There were friendly chats in her dressing room every night; conversation while they danced together after the show—laughter when they went on an auto drive to Estes Village — or hiked through the piny air of Estes Park. A touch of the hand—a smile—her arm in his. They were together a lot, and Cora continued to like Brad Lewis. But love? No dice. Those were her words when they first touched that delicate topic.

"A guy already has a stake planted in my heart, Brad. It's an old story," she told Gordon. "I'd like you to meet him. His name is Clifford Morley. I just got no eyes for anybody else, never have had since the night I met him. It clicked for both of us and we said so."

She talked freely about it, banking on Gordon's friendship to keep her secret . . . unburdening herself of her pent-up love for a man she hadn't seen for a month, and missed. She mentioned Morley's first wife — the gold mine wife, Laurie Iverson. Her eyes glittered when she told the rest of the story. She told how she had thought Morley would marry her, after Laurie died. He had told her that he would, before he went East to get money to finance some work in the mine.

"Gold got into his blood," Cora said. "He got the fever, I guess. Men do out here, once they strike pay dirt. He stayed away a long time. I thought he was in South America, but he wasn't. He was after dough all right. He married a rich frill, a Long Island tramp with nothing to do but steal another woman's man."

Gordon flinched. "Were you fighting mad with her"

"Mad? I'd have clawed her eyes out and killed him, so help me. She knows that. She wanted to buy me off, offered me a good piece of change, too. If she thought she was taking Cliff from a softie, she was crazy. I made it hot for her—boiling hot. She must have been sore and frightened at the heat I put on her. Cliff was ripping mad too. We had a real battle, the three of us. I mean real, look." She held up the hair over the left side of her head — a blue white welt showed. She dragged her hair back in place. "That's where he got me with a bottle. Knocked me cold for an hour. I was glad, because it made him awful sorry, and we patched up right afterward. He hasn't tried to pull anything on me since . . . Where's he gone" She shrugged. "You got me; I never know. He's like quicksilver, now you got it—now you don't. But he comes back to me."

"You gave me a good idea, Cora," said Gordon, "if you want him back soon."

Cora clutched his arm. "Do I want him back soon Oh boy, you spoke a mouthful."

Gordon outlined a plan that had run through his mind the moment she had said she wanted to see Morley again.

"You're going to finish out your engagement this Saturday night. My story on you is all ready to print—we'll run it for Saturday, an unsigned featurette — telling everybody you're leaving Denver for good. Then I want to add one item to that story, a paragraph saying that the admirers of Cora Leroy had better get their last eyeful of the sultry dancer—because Saturday night after the show she's eloping with Brad Lewis, a newspaper man."

"Brad, I always thought writers were screwy—now I know it. Why, how would a gag like that bring Cliff back to me?"

"Don't you see what I mean? Morley couldn't pass that up. If he's near Denver at all—he'll read or hear about it—and he'll come out from hiding—come out running; for you."

She laughed throatily. "Maybe he would. I take it back, pal. It's a deal—see you tomorrow night. Print your phoney story."

The story appeared on page one of the Saturday afternoon supplement. The Telegram staff artist had given it a drawing and a four-column spread. Nobody could miss it.

Gordon dressed excitedly, that Saturday night; dark red tie, white shirt, soft flannel suit, and arrived after Cora's 12 o'clock show. He stood near the orchestra; all the seats in the Gold Nugget were occupied.

Engineers and production men, tanned and hard — flabby white faces of Eastern executives; weaving, laughing, gulping—Gordon searched them all for that one saturnine face. He stood at the side, near the entrance, watching the pay nighters crowd in. Then he circled the bar, peering into faces, wandered about the packed tables, returned to his post sadly.

When Cora pranced on, her eyes were wide with inquiry for him. Gordon shrugged at her—held up his hand with an open empty palm.

After her show she came to him in street togs, tense with the question, "Seen him at all?" To which Gordon answered "Sorry, no."

"Well, come on," she added, "let's go around together. You might have missed him. I'd spot him fifty feet away."

With that, she dragged Gordon through the rows of standees at the bar, peering around shoulders, staring through the haze of cigaret smoke. The hat check girl didn't remember seeing Morley; the doorman was vague.

"No dice," said Cora, "I'm not his glamour girl anymore."

"I'm sorry, Cora," said Gordon, "I thought it was a sure bet he'd show up."

"To tell the truth, so did I," she mumbled wearily, "Come on, let's dance. He's given me the cold shoulder for sure. Damn him"

"Maybe he's out of the country," said Gordon.

"It's possible, but not probable. Well, I don't expect anyone else I want to see. It's 1 o'clock now. I'm taking the Silver Arrow east to Chicago. She leaves at 1:30. I must change, go back to my apartment for my suitcase. Want to see me off"

"Sure. Try and stop me."

They were standing close to the tables when a huge, long-maned drinker rose to his feet and staggered over, "Hi, Miss Leroy, Hi, pardner. How's chances of a dance with the little lady?"

Gordon saw Cora's eyes open wide. She said, "Sorry, not right now, my friend. This one's promised."

Gordon pushed the miner away gently with, "Sorry, old pal; maybe later."

Cora said, "Let's dance, Brad. That guy is hard. I know. It's a wonder he didn't want to scrap. I wouldn't want to get stuck with him. Let's finish the number to make it look good, and then make a smooth exit."

The orchestra was playing a liquid waltz. Cora's head rested against Gordon's lapel; they danced into the group of gliding couples, Gordon asking Cora about places where the missing Morley might be. She suggested one, the big house he owned in the valley—and then there were two strong taps on Gordon's right shoulder—and a sharp voice asking, "May I cut in?"

Gordon turned, ready with an angry "No," expecting the intruder to be the miner. But it was not the hard-looking tippler this time. It was a man whose face Gordon had seen before—in a portrait over the mantel at Moonhollow. It was Clifford Morley.

DESCRIBES HOW BRITISH, REDS STALL PINCERS

Writer Says Axis Losing More Than It Can Afford In Moves on Caucasus.

(Editor's Note: The manner in which Soviet and British armies are holding firm in the face of German offensives is described in the following article by Major Paul C. Raborg, noted military analyst and author of "Mechanized Might.")

By MAJOR PAUL C. RABORG

NEW YORK—(INS)—The Soviets in Russia and the British in Egypt are holding under the Axis sledge-hammer blows. There has been no uncontrolled break-through. It is impossible to give too much credit and praise to our Allies for the manner in which they are meeting this obviously all-out blitzkrieg.

As is apparent to everyone, Hitler's objective is the Caucasus, Iraz and Iran, and the Middle East. One pincer arm is attempting to drive towards this goal by way of Russia, and the other through Egypt. To complete this Axis picture, Japan should be also attempting an offensive for the same objective through India.

If no more than the present rate of speed is attained by the totalitarian armies they are defeated. It is impossible for Hitler to pay the terrific price in men and material, per mile gained, that it is now costing him.

The wonderful thing about the Red army in Russia and the British in Egypt is that wherever there is retirement it has been entirely under control, in perfect order, and they are making the Axis divisions pay a cost that human nature will not endure.

In all of the fighting in Europe, up to the invasion of Russia and the British fighting in North Africa, the blitzkrieg accomplished a break-through and then complete defensive collapse followed. Whole countries were overrun in a matter of days. This condition in my opinion, as I have stated for a number of months past, is over. The blitzkrieg of old is stopped.

But because of this superbly successful defense, the United Nations cannot minimize the danger or the cost, particularly to Russia. The Soviet and the British in the Middle East must have every ounce of help that the Allied command can speed to them. Neither of our Allies can continue too long to pay their present price.

If the worst comes to the worst, the Don and Volga rivers form a natural resistance position across the northern end of the Caucasus. The defense gap, about 50 miles, between these rivers is not much larger than the British line in Egypt. In other words, the Red armies can establish a line between Rostov and Stalingrad which should stop Hitler's onrushing panzer divisions.

Then, if the Soviet line of defense angled northwest to Voronezh, for all this slaughter sustained by the Nazis they have only accomplished a deep salient in the Russian defenses. But if this salient is accomplished, disruption of main Soviet railroads and oil pipelines will be extremely serious. This situation entirely throws out of gear their central internal system of supply.

The fact that these conditions are by no means fatal does not lessen the Russian need of help. Nevertheless, the Soviets still have the oil pipeline which starts at the northern end of the Caspian sea, and the newly developed oil fields to the south and east of Moscow. Our supply routes via the Arctic ocean and the Persian gulf are not affected in the present fighting.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I WOULD like to add a small voice to the mounting chorus of movie-goers who are pleading with the cinema powers to keep Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald out of the screen versions of any but the old-fashioned, or Blossom Time, type of musical film.

Kilgallen

I am extremely fond of the team when they are lifting their voices in glorious song, but when the plot begins to require comedy, the burden is too great both on the artists and the public. I recall "I Married An Angel" as one of Rodgers and Hart's most delicious samples of fluff, and I spent an extremely painful evening contemplating the picture of the same name.

By all means, give Nelson Eddy the stout-hearted men he is always demanding, permit Jeanette's loved to come back to her, as she lyrically asks, but discover another team to play sophisticated musical comedy or leave same to Broadway.

I have a theory that it is fairly easy to distinguish one Gotham restaurant from another blindfolded—distinguish it. I mean, not by the music or the cuisine, which might be difficult, but by the conversation that swirls around the tables. It strikes me as an interesting experiment, and I should like to attempt some time to identify the various ports of call just from the dialogue.

I would know I was in Sardi's for example, if I heard a cultured masculine voice say, "And the dirty so-and-so promised me the part months ago!" I would detect Lindy's as soon as I heard the key sentence, "Gosh, this joint must be a gold mine!"

The tip-off in 21 would be either, "I hear they've moved to a farm in Connecticut where he can finish the play" or "I read it, and it stinks." The Persian Room clue would be a dignified voice saying, "This is your great-niece Katherine, my dear; her mother married one of the Stuyvesants." At Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe, it would be the inevitable tableful singing "Happy anniversary, dear Mr. and Mrs. Bogeheimer, happy anniversary to you."

The Colony's phrase might be, "Heavens, is she married AGAIN?" And the Lean and Eddie's tip-off would be a masculine voice saying, "Lissen, babe, I can do big things for you." The Rainbow Room would be a cinch to identify by "Yes, dear, we'll visit the Statue of Liberty first thing in the morning."

Of course, I claim no infallibility, but I suspect I could run up a pretty good score.

Wanna bet?

Although the spy and sabouteur sagas on the front pages of the gazettes would seem to be exciting enough reading, I have also been having myself quite a time these past few days with volumes of fictional spy thrillers.

Bennett Cerf's omnibus of three gooseflesh-getters — Oppenheim's "The Great Impersonation," Eric Ambler's "Journey Into Fear," and Grahame Greene's "The Confidential Agent"—are something to keep you cool with tension on the most blistery night. . . . Associated with the lads in the uniforms of our various services I have acquired an impressive and constantly growing back-log of military terminology that sounds very professional when I try it out on less informed civilians. I can now use such recondite tetrms as "strictly G. I.," "muzzle velocity" and "6G dive" with deftness and assurance.

Well, deftness.

The dispensers of potables never can be accused of not keeping up with the times. Yesterday's gin fizz is today's MacArthur Sling; last week's zombie is a Bombardier Special, and in order to cope with a beverage menu you certainly have to keep up with the newspapers . . . The years certainly pull funny switches. A few seasons back it was traditional for the pretty girls to journey to New York and pound the pavements looking for a job on the stage. Anything—just anything—to get a spot in the chorus, from which they might be "discovered" for the movies. Now, the little country girls journey to New York and try desperately—to get a job as cigaret girl at the Stork club! It's a much quicker way to fame

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—It's strange how many parts there are in Hollywood today for a man with a beard.

Strange when a few years ago they said it couldn't be done — not with a beard. Of course, even now the man with the beard has to be Monty Woolley. For after "The Pied Piper" a movie as full of heart as "Mrs. Miniver" and with more suspense) Monty is going to be welcome, complete with beard, in any studio. He draws Ida Lupino for co-star in "Light of Heart," and after that,—well, they'll be writing beards into their pictures instead of asking Monty to shave.

Coons

There's one set at the "U" you could spot as harboring an "escape" picture even if you didn't know the title was "Arabian Nights." There's nothing quite so escapist (that's a new word for it) as six beauteous maids in gauzy veils, sheer pantaloons, and glittering jewels,—all passed by the Hays office. The maids are billed as the "six virgins" in publicity though not in the script. They appear in the film's prologue and epilogue, taking their reading lesson from beturbaned, overstuffed Robert Grieg. The books they are reading are "Arabian Nights," but what they read will be a riproaring action meller for Sabu, John Hall, Maria Cortez—without a mention of current troubles.

PAINED query after seeing the not - so - "Magnificent Ambersons": Did Orson Wells make this —and "Citizen Kane?"

Sol Wurtzel called for new titles for "Manila Calling." Among the suggestions: "Calling Manila."

Director Michael Curtiz, celebrating with "Casablanca" his 15th year in Hollywood, made his first movie here after a jail term —self-imposed. Coming from Europe, speaking even less English than his present picturesque language, he was assigned to direct a typically American gang film, "The Third Degree." Mike took his troubles to the sheriff who obligingly let him spend a while in a cell near the real jailbirds, absorbing their lingo . . . After which, Mike went on the set and taught the dialogue-writers a few new words.

"CASABLANCA" has the most accented set in town. There's inimitable Mike's — Hungarian. There's Ingrid Bergman's—Swedish. There's Paul Henreid's — Austrian. S Z Sakall's—German. Madeleine LeBeau's — French. And Robert Aisner—very French.

Aisner is technical adviser. To look at him, mild, polite, quiet, you would not suspect that his recent life would make a first-class movie story. He once was a French producer and director in Paris. In June, 1940, he was in the Maginot Line—in a fort that fought on after the armistice. He was taken to a German prison camp near Czecho-Slovakia. He escaped, made his way in constant peril back to Paris, to Vichy where he was decorated, then to the Free French army.

WOULD PRODUCE FLYING BOATS AT SHIP YARDS

Higgins Hopes To See FDR on Mass Production Proposal.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Andrew Jackson Higgins, New Orleans shipbuilder who wants to convert his shipyards to mass production of the 70-ton Glenn L. Martin flying boat "Mars," hopes to see President Roosevelt today about the plan.

The proposal for beating the Axis submarine campaign by shifting the emphasis from surface ships to huge flying boats was made by another shipbuilder, Henry J. Kaiser of Oregon. Higgins also expects to confer with him here.

The flying boat proposal has touched off a great, new controversy here. As yet there is official silence on the plan, but officials of nearly every war agency had something to say about it.

Air experts are predicting that the time is not far away when huge aircraft will be shuttling the seven seas with men and material for the fighting fronts. In the midst of the discussion the army air transport command announced that American commercial airlines would extend their operations immediately to carry men and materials to every war theater in the world where Americans are fighting.

Higgins' arrival today is expected to give a filip to discussion of Kaiser's plan which already has won endorsement of the aircraft and ship builders, and several senators.

Kaiser's proposal was made after the U. S. maritime commission last Saturday cancelled its contract with Higgins' company to build 200 Liberty cargo ships because of lack of steel. Kaiser then suggested that nine shipyards be converted to mass production of Martin's huge boat.

Glenn L. Martin, Baltimore aircraft manufacturer who in addition to the "Mars" has designed a 125-ton flying boat, said such craft "can easily assume the chief burden of ocean transport because of their high speed and greater frequency of movement."

"Since we are losing surface ships much faster than we can build them," Martin said, "the air cargo program is of extreme importance at this time."

URGES PROGRAM

Washington Raid Chief Says Education Needed.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Chief Air Raid Warden William J. Mileham today said that a definite program must be instituted immediately to educate Washington's store owners to turn out their lights during a blackout.

Mileham said he counted 40 or more commercial establishments violating regulations when Washington underwent its first surprise air raid test last night.

Sirens sounded the alert at 11:12 p. m. catching thousands of theater-goers on downtown streets. The all-clear signal was given at 11:43.

DRIVER UNHURT IN TRUCK CRASH

Mansfielder Escapes Although Vehicle's Demolished.

A Mansfield truck driver escaped injury yesterday afternoon when his truck turned over after running off the highway, one-half mile south of Mansfield on State Route 13. The vehicle was completely demolished.

Driver of the truck, David F. McQuillen, 62, of 352 South Diamond street, told state highway patrolmen that he had been passed by a car which after cutting in front of him was forced to slow down for a third vehicle making a turn into a side road.

Unable to stop, McQuillen turned his truck off the highway where the rear wheel hit the ditch, rolling the truck over, patrolmen said. The truck was loaded with seven tons of asphalt.

DEATH CLAIMS M. L. ANNENBERG

Millionaire Publisher Dies of Pneumonia Following an Operation.

(By Associated Press)

ROCHESTER, Minn.—M. L. Annenberg — immigrant, newsboy, circulation genius, millionaire publisher died last night. He was 64.

His colorful career rivaled those of his one time associates, William Randolph Hearst and Arthur Brisbane. Pneumonia, which developed after an operation, caused his death.

Publisher of the Philadelphia Inquirer and head of an extensive financial empire based on racing publications, Annenberg had been a patient here since his release on parole June 3 from the federal penintentiary at Lewisburg, Pa.

He had served 23 months of a three-year sentence for income tax evasion in a case called the largest of its kind on record and which obligated him to pay the government $10,000,000.

Annenberg was four years old when his father, an impoverished Russian farmer, came to this country in 1882 and settled in Chicago as a junk peddler. The boy had little formal schooling.

The start of his meteoric rise to fame generally is counted from 1904 when Hearst made him circulation manager of the old Chicago Examiner.

Newspaper circulation was Annenberg's forte. It pyramided under his touch and that made him a millionaire at 39.

In 1918, Annenberg became circulation manager for Brisbane's new paper in Milwaukee, and when Brisbane sold it to Hearst, Annenberg moved in as circulation manager for the entire Hearst system.

About the same time, Annenberg went into the racing publications business.

He bought the Inquirer in 1936 for an estimated $15,000,000, went into Republican politics and fought the New Deal.

When he was indicted on charges of evading taxes, Annenberg declared he was a victim of political persecution.

GOV. BRICKER TO NAME JUDGE

Expected To Appoint Bettman's Successor By Sept. 1.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Governor John W. Bricker is expected to appoint a successor to the late Supreme Court Judge Gilbert Bettman about the time the court reconvenes, Sept. 21.

Four years remain in the unexpired Bettman term and a successor will be elected by the public in November. Between now and the election the governor may name a temporary appointee to fill the vacancy.

Inasmuch as the vacancy occurred less than 30 days prior to the primary election, it will be impossible for candidates to get their names on the primary nominating ballots. Candidates must file by petition in the general election.

GETS WALLET IN MAIL

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Rev. Damiel L. Goodwin lost his wallet to a pickpocket in Steubenville, O., a week ago Sunday, but it was returned to him by mail, the clergyman said last night.

PRE-FLIGHT AERONAUTICS TO BE NEW SENIOR HIGH COURSE

The Mansfield board of education last night set up a course in pre-flight aeronautics for senior boys and girls, taking a further step toward full cooperation with the federal government in its war program.

Starting with the opening of the new school year in September, the aeronautics course will be made available to 15 or 18 seniors who can meet the entrance requirements. One unit of credit will be awarded upon satisfactory completion of the course

The training will be provided with the sanction of the state department of education and the Civil Aeronautics authority. Subjects to be offered will include meteorology, aerodynamics, air navigation, communications, aircraft engines, structure and design, and civil air regulations.

Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller said the instruction will be offered by the physics department at Senior high school and no new teachers or equipment will be needed.

Requirements for enrollment in the course will include completion of two units of mathematics and one unit of physics. The recommended unit of physics may be taken concurrently with the aeronautics course, Supt. Miller said.

Purpose of the course will be to give high school pupils preliminary training in aviation which will shorten the period of specialized training necessary for their entrance into military or commercial aviation when they are graduated from high school.

The board also approved the training of 10 youths in naval aviation at the Mansfield airport under a government program. The training, like the national defense classes at Senior high school and the NYA center at Mifflin, must have the approval of the school board as a supervisory body before the federal government will release funds to finance the wartime instruction.

THREE RESIGN

Board Fills Two Vacancies on Teaching Staff.

Resignations of three Mansfield teachers were accepted last night by the board of education which then employed two of the instructors needed to replace them.

Teachers who resigned were Miss Wilma Snider, physical education instructor in the junior high schools; Miss Kathleen Grube, Bowman school, and Miss Florence Robison, elementary schools art supervisor.

Miss Lola Stephenson, Mansfield, was employed to succeed Miss Snider in the physical education department and Miss Avis Archibald of Butler was hired for Miss Grube's place.

Miss Snider resigned to become an instructor for girls at the University high school, Ohio State university, Columbus. Misses Grube and Robison resigned because of marriage.

AIDS VICTIMS

Red Cross Takes Care Of 10,000 In Pennsylvania Flood Area.

BRADFORD, Pa. —(INS)— The Red Cross reported it was taking care of 10,000 persons today as residents of a five-county area in northern Pennsylvania and southern New York began cleaning up the debris from week-end flash floods that cost at least 14 lives and millions of dollars in property damage.

The relief agency also reported that the death toll may be expanded when complete communicatoin is resumed with isolated communities.

BOARD TO NAME NEW LIBRARIAN

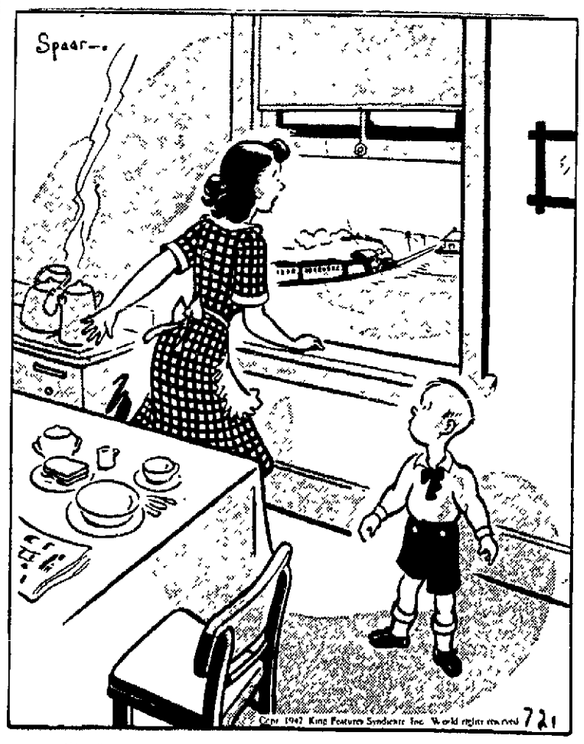
State Commission to Select Noon's Successor Soon.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Kenneth C. Ray, state director of education, said today the state library board would be called into special session probably this week to select a new librarian. Ray is chairman of the board.

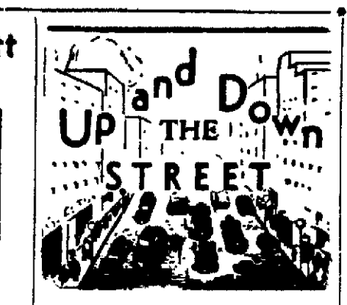
Paul A. T. Noon resigned as librarian recently following a dispute over expense accounts and Ray said there were five or six applicants for the $5,000 post. Howard Chambers has been serving temporarily.

Gov. John W. Bricker has said he wanted a trained librarian rather than an educator selected for the position.

Laff-a-Day



"Junior, go up and wake Daddy. There's his train!"



Mansfield relatives and friends of Mayor John A. Carey of Toledo, frequent visitor here, are interested in his candidacy for the Lucas county common pleas judgeship. Gov. Bricker recently appointed another attorney, the Republican candidate, to fill the vacancy on the bench, arousing Toledo Democrats who are stout supporters of Carey. A Columbus political observer says, "If Mayor Carey becomes judge, Toledo will need a mayor in the worst way. Carey also would make a splendid congressman." The Toledo mayor is a brother of Mrs. Samuel F. Smith, jr., West Third street extension.

The transportation problem that confronts every group of campers and picnickers is now bothering the Salvation Army officials planning for their annual outing, with 200 persons expected to attend. Usually the picnickers are conveyed to Long lake but that is out of the question this year, according to Adjt. Paul Hoffman. Therefore the corps is considering Greter's lake or the army's own camp near the city depending upon the transportation available July 31 when the picnic is slated.

They're not having a war but at least there's shooting plus some very definite rivalry at Camp Nelson Dodd this week in a series of rifle matches between camp advisors and the boys. Led by 14-year-old Jimmy Kelley of 389 West Third street, who turned in a perfect score of 50 yesterday, the youngsters, so far are giving the "old men" plenty of competition. It's still a good fight, because the counselors, headed by rifle instructor Stu Martin, refuse to yield the field to their youngers until the last shot's fired.

Mansfield veterans of World War I—especially those of the 37th Division, are dispatching messages of sympathy to Lieut. Col. Harry (Sandy) Kerr, superintendent of Camp Perry, whose son, Lieut. Robert Kerr, has been reported killed in a plane crash in England. Colonel Kerr was an officer with the Shreve company of the 146th Infantry in the last war and is well-known in Mansfield.

2 Drivers Forfeit Bonds, 3rd To Be Tried Tomorrow.

In the Mansfield police traffic department's campaign against speeding, three more drivers were arrested Monday but only one will answer charges in municipal traffic court Wednesday.

C. D. Evel, R. D. 1 Lexington, posted $16.30 and waived hearing following his arrest at 9:30 p. m. charged with speeding on Lexington avenue.

Fred G. Constance, 515 Russell road, is charged with driving 60 miles an hour on West Fourth street. He will be arraigned in court tomorrow.

James Coughlin, jr., of Findlay, forfeited $16.30 rather than appear in court following his arrest for excessive speed on Park avenue west.

WEDS FILLING STATION AIDE

Walter Pew, jr., Marries Attendant Employed By His Wealthy Father.

PHILADELPHIA —(U.P.)— Walter C. Pew, jr., son of the general manager of the Sun Oil company, and Sophie Boychuk, 22-year-old attendant of one of the company's service stations, were married last night.

The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Frank C. Kromer, who was not aware of the couple's identity until he examined the marriage license.

Miss Boychuk, daughter of Russian-born parents and a former waitress, worked at her job at the service station until shortly before the ceremony.

MT. GILEAD MAN DIES AT AGE 81

Funeral Services For Frank Lentz To Be Held Thursday.

MT. GILEAD—A life-long Morrow county resident, Frank Lentz, 81, died this morning at his home here of a heart ailment. He had been ill for some time.

He was born at Edison, March 8, 1861. Surviving are his widow, Margaret; two daughters, Mrs. Martha Peoples and Miss Grace Lentz, both of Mt. Gilead; and two sons, Lawrence and Henry Lentz, also of Mt. Gilead.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Thursday at the home. Burial will be in Revercliff cemetery.

KILLED BY OWN GUN

MARION —(U.P.)—Paul Norton, 15, and his father, Fred, a Marion policeman, went to Wyandot county to hunt crows yesterday. The youth pulled a shotgun from the rear of their car. It discharged accidentally and he died of chest wounds before his father could summon aid.

FOUR GIRLS DIE IN GRAVEL PIT NEAR OXFORD

Boy, 12, Drowns in Scioto, Another, 9, Claimed at Sandusky.

(By Associated Press)

OXFORD—(AP)—Four Oxford high school girls three of them sisters, drowned yesterday in the treacherous waters of the Oxford Sand and Gravel company pit.

The sisters—Naomi, 18, Pauline, 16, and Genevieve, 14—were children of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe McCoy, who live at a nearby farm.

Other victim was Ruth Clevenger, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Clevenger, whose other child, Bessie May, 11, saw the tragedy.

"We had been wading in another place," Bessie said, "but it was too dirty, and there were too many crawdaddies, so we came over here."

Tearful and trembling the child told how the other girls laughed at her fear of the new wading place and explored near the water's edge to "see how deep it was." Suddenly two disappeared then the other two went down.

"At first I thought they were only playing," the youngster said, but soon terror seized her and she tumbled through weeds crying for help until she found Ernest Rhodus, pit manager.

Rhodus plunged into the large pool—100 feet deep in some places —hunting for the bodies.

Half hour later all four bodies, huddled together, were found 25 feet below an underwater ledge.

Joint services for the McCoy girls will be Thursday morning, and for the Clevenger girl Thursday afternoon.

Two other Ohio children drowned yesterday. In the Scioto river near Chillicothe, James Painter, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Moore stepped into a hole while wading. At East Battery park the Sandusky area's first drowning victim of the season was James Travis Perkins, 9, son of Mr and Mrs. William M. Perkins of Avery.

Board Acts To Enlarge Senior High Shop Class

Because more Senior high school pupils are becoming interested in machine shop courses to train them for war jobs, the Mansfield board of education last night expanded the vocational education department and authorized the hiring of another instructor.

Half of the salary of the new instructor, who will be hired later, will be paid by the state board of vocational education and half by the Mansfield school board.

Supt. W. L. Miller told the board last night that about 70 sophomores have made application to enter the machine shop course this fall. Under the old set-up only about 50 more boys could take the course, the superintendent said.

The new plan provides for use of the shop one week by sophomores who would be in class the next week while the juniors and seniors used the shop.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, JULY 21, 1942.

The school of experience has few young graduates.

Suggested slogan for save-the-fats campaign: "Out of the frying pan into the firing line."

Remember to have your auto battery checked regularly—and to have it recharged, if necessary—it may have to last you for a long time.

One congressman announces that he will "appeal to thinkers" in his campaign for re-election—probably believing he is solid with the others.

Ban Go-Betweens In War Contracts

FIRST local reaction to the idea of paying high commissions to go-betweens in the award of government contracts came last year when Charles West, former congressman from this district, sued to collect fees running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, for alleged services in securing contracts for a "client."

This case was finally reported as "settled," without further information, and the general impression was that whatever Charley got out of it was too much.

Now the house naval committee, spurred to action by similar incidents, has approved a measure outlawing commission fees on government war contracts—which is rightly considered nothing more than fancy graft. This bill was passed by the house yesterday and is now up to the senate.

A recent revelation was that three members of one family received almost $700,000 in commissions for securing war contracts from various government agencies and there is reason to believe that the practice has become quite extensive—all at the eventual cost to taxpayers who are required to meet war costs.

This is a parasitic practice for which there can be no legitimate defense, and the quicker congress acts to make it criminal procedure the better it will be for everybody, except the few who have been enriching themselves at the cost of the many.

Lack the 'Lac' To Make Shellac

COLLECTION of old phonograph records is another of the many reclaiming activities necessitated by cut-off of world trade on account of the war.

Few things are more useless around the house than worn-out phonograph records and this contribution is nothing more than taking time to sort out the ancient records that have served their period of usefulness and turning them over to the pleasant-faced Boy Scout who is doing his "good turn" by gathering them up during the campaign being sponsored by the American Legion.

It's the shellac coating, you know, that is the scarce item in manufacture of phonograph records—but you may not know that the basis of shellac is a resinous substance produced as "lac" by an insect that is largely cultivated in India for this purpose.

So, continued production of phonograph records is greatly dependent on getting back some of the shellac already used on records—and allowances which manufacturers make for old records will be used to supply new records and record-players to be sent to military camps and to men in overseas service.

This is a good time for a clean-up of your record cabinet—get rid of the old ones by having them ready for the Boy Scout who will call at your home, or take them to any one of the city fire stations.

Roaming Dogs To Be Seized

NOTICE is given by the mayor and marshal of South Boulevards, newly incorporated village adjoining Mansfield on Lexington avenue, that dog owners in the village must keep the animals from running at large. Otherwise, it is announced, the dogs will be seized by the village marshal, as provided by law.

South Boulevards residents, it is noted, are much given to cultivating garden plots, as well as taking pride in making their home surroundings attractive with flowers and shrubbery, and quite naturally resent the idea of having gardens and flower beds damaged by roaming dogs.

Once the matter is taken in hand, as is now being done, it seems quite likely that the nuisance can be abated—just as could be done in residential sections of Mansfield if official attention were given to this violation of law.

Stories That Have Lived

A WRITER who has delighted thousands of readers in many countries for a hundred years, has something. Such a writer is Alexandre Dumas, author of "The Three Musketeers" and "The Count of Monte Cristo," who was born in 1802 and whose birthday will be celebrated Friday, July 24. As long as people read adventure stories, so long will they read these tales of Dumas.

For such a popular writer, it is odd but probably true that no one on earth has read all his books. Over 1,200 bear his name. Many of them were written by others under his general direction, some not even getting that. He left plenty of books that people do and will read.

The man himself was as interesting as his books. He wrote plays, served under the Italian patriot Garibaldi, and built himself a fairy castle with every luxury that his mind could conceive. He made and spent fortunes, and was not always particular where he got them.

Season of Abundant Crops

THIS appears to be a banner year for production of crops and livestock. Prospects are said to be first class for soy beans, peanuts and flaxseed, for sugar beets, barley, dry beans and canning vegetables. There are also large supplies of wheat and other bread and feed grains.

Some areas, such as those of the midwestern corn belt, have suffered from too much coolness and moisture, some parts of the southwest have had too much dryness, but the great plains, which have undergone so much disaster from drought in years past, have been doing exceptionally well and the country as a whole is flourishing.

There will be about the same amount of fruit as last year, more sugar and more potatoes.

If the surplus from this bounty of nature could just be moved to the starving regions of the world, life would be better for everyone. The best that can be done, apparently, is to store what is possible, in the hope that it may reach those who so greatly need it before it is too late.

No Hysteria In Present Spy Hunt

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

ATTORNEY GENERAL FRANCIS BIDDLE is hot after enemy saboteurs, spies and miscellaneous other agents in the United States but not a bit of hysteria characterizes his activities.

During the last war a lot of perfectly good American citizens, some of them of two or three generations' standing in this country, were suspected, by their neighbors at least, because they'd inherited German names, and in certain cases knew the Teutonic lingo.

They lost jobs on account of pretty remote ancestries, and in various instances were chased out of neighborhoods they were as native to as the folk who lived next door to 'em.

Well, President Roosevelt will be recalled as having, early in the present conflict, deprecated unreasoning prejudices on our current part, and it's a policy that Attorney General Biddle's commendably adhering to.

Registration.

We've a law of recent enactment, requiring foreign governments' friends in our midst, to register accordingly with the state department.

One of 'em I know who has done so is Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times. Heaven knows he's not an enemy agent, but technically he's subject to that statute, so he abides by it.

And I myself?

Earlier in the game the Japs introduced into the National Press club, as one of its members and as a member also of the Congressional Press Gallery, Matsuo Kato, representing Nippon's big news agency, Domei. It seemed to me a shame to have Japan on the job with no Chinese spokesman in attendance, so I offered, to Ambassador Chen Ting Wang to sponsor a Chinese of his selection. He promptly specified his second secretary, Yun-fang Lieu. I got him in and gave him the best advice I could.

That incident's past. Ambassador Wang has been recalled. I don't know just why but I believe it's because he went financially broke. Brother Lieu is working for the Red Cross in China, with his photograph still on my parlor wall.

The point is that I'd have been a "foreign agent," subject to registration with the state department, as one of its American informants, if the whole affair hadn't preceded passage of the existing federal regulation.

And I'd have registered, of course.

These pro-German operators of today, though, are in a different classification.

Anyway, I think they are.

I don't believe for a minute that they include any dyed-in-the-wool Americans. I don't believe they include any local Italians. Indeed, my impression is that our Italian-Americans are as anti-Axis as any group that's produced.

America's Japs.

I've got my doubts that our Japs are disloyal to any extent. I've had numerous contacts with 'em in Hawaii and on our Pacific coast. At home they've got a nutty group, but I'm skeptical that its philosophy has spread to this side of the Pacific.

Germany perhaps to a slight degree has dug in.

Those are the ones that Attorney General Biddle is trailing.

But he doesn't want to do it to an extent that'll make a chap suspected merely because his name's Einstein or has an "ach" at its end.

The poor Japs are much worse off.

Suppose your name was Kawakami- — born here? — never in Japan?—a 100 per cent American? — all your sympathies Yankee? And suppose the name, Kawakami, barred you from fighting on the side you wanted to fight on?

You might say the same thing about Yun-fang Lieu, the Chinaman.

Names are immaterial, Germans and all sorts of 'em. That's what Attorney General Biddle is crusading for.

Timely Editorial

Petrillo Due For a Fall.

If Czar Jimmy Petrillo of the Musicians' union has any virtue it is consistency. Whenever he opens his mouth he affirms his megalomania. If he isn't prescribing where and by whom the National Anthem may be played, he is shutting the Interlochen Camp orchestra of 15-year-olds off the air because the boys and girls are too young to be union dues-payers.

It is time, we think, the broadcast chains came to grips with the czar and his pretensions. As they keep putting it off, Jimmy becomes harder and harder to live with.

Not So 'Independent'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

FOURTH OF JULY has passed. But I am still marveling, as I always have, at the interpretation most of us give to "Independence Day."

We seem to think that independence means unlimited personal license to live our lives as we choose . . . that it means release from bondage.

ANYTHING BUT!

Independence actually means the highest form of responsibility—the most serious bonds humanity can know. For independence implies that we must think for ourselves and act for ourselves, yet both think and act for the common good.

Independence does not mean that you are no longer your brother's keeper. It means that you must take his burden upon your own stronger shoulders; that you have decided to live the life and share the responsibilities of a fully matured human being.

Independence day does not commemorate the day on which the colonies broke away from England. Instead it commemorates a time when the colonies decided to be responsible for their own lives and obligations, whatever the cost might be.

For independence is always costly, rarely comfortable. It means that you must make up your own mind and face the penalty of your own blunders. It is the highest and yet the toughest estate to which human beings may aspire.

HOW MANY, I WONDER, OF US "FREE AMERICANS" REALLY RELISH LIBERTY?

HOW MANY OF US DARE TO BE FREE OR ASSUME THE HEAVY YOKE OF INDEPENDENCE? I DOUBT IF MANY OF US DO.

We would be furious if any one told us of this fact and would deny it indignantly, for we are quite sure that we run our own lives. But do we? No, not one in a hundred. We are as slaves bound by fear and prejudice, tradition and convention, as any shackled captives that ever came out of the African jungle.

We read what somebody else tells us to read. We think as the people around us think. We conform in our dressing to the ruling of some far-off fashion dictator. If Dad was a Democrat we are Democrats. If he was a Republican, we are Republican. Independent? Just about as much as a fly on flypaper. Why is congress able to make such idiotic rulings? Why is Labor able to defy the government?

BECAUSE WE ARE NOT FREE. . . . WE DARE NOT ASSUME THE BURDENS OF INDEPENDENCE.

It is a good and necessary thing to have a congress and to have some form of organized labor. But it is a weak and domoralizing and damnable thing for us to take their dictates lying down without a struggle.

The simple truth is, we shout our heads off about liberty but not one in a thousand of us has what it takes to live it. We are too lazy to think for ourselves, too cowardly to fight for our rights or exert our personal initiative. But we will have to learn to do these things, and quick.

THE GREATEST MENACE TO AMERICA TODAY IS NOT THE GERMAN ARMY OR THE JAPANESE ARMY; IT IS OUR OWN MENTAL AND SPIRITUAL INERTIA. WE DO NOT KNOW OUR OWN MINDS; WE ARE AFRAID TO DEVELOP MINDS, AND WE ARE KIDDING NOBODY. . . . LEAST OF ALL HITLER OR HIROHITO.

Nazi Forces Battle Against Time As Red Resistance Drains Power

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

THE HITLERITES are continuing their slow but inevitable advance on the southern Russian front, and their occupation of the railway junction of Voroshilovgrad greatly increases the threat to Rostov, western gatepost of the Caucasus, some hundred miles to the south.

The saving grace, from the Allied standpoint, rests in the fact that the Red withdrawal is orderly and their fierce resistance is draining the life-blood of the enemy. The gods of war still gamble the Soviet's vast spaces against Herr Hitler's short and fleeting power.

Can the Bolshevists hold the German invasion until the winter, or some fortuitous military development, makes it too late for the Nazis to break into the Caucasus this year? The Red position is exceedingly grave, but the Allies have a right to hope that Hitler can be held.

The Russian rear-guard is putting up a heroic fight to give the main body of troops a chance to get set to make a stand.

The Nazi advance in the great eastward bend of the Don river, is spectacular, but don't overlook the situations at Voronezh, a strategical railway junction on the Don river to the north of the main advance. There has been protracted and fierce fighting there, and the reason is this:

It is apparent that Hitler's strategy for his great drive against the Caucasus provided that he hold his line on the north while he smashed at the southern extremity with his great army of a million fresh troops.

Voronezh is the anchor to which Nazi General Von Bock wants to attach his left wing, for the Russians may launch a counter-offensive from this point, endangering Von Bock's left flank and his entire battle line. And the Nazis themselves report heavy Red concentrations near Voronezh, indicating the possibilities of such an offensive.

Because of this we may expect the bloody conflict to continue for possession of Voronezh. If the Reds are able to maintain their positions, we may see a Soviet counter-blow launched through there in due course. The time for such an attack would not seem to be ripe yet. That will come, if at all, when the Germans have penetrated deeper, thereby increasing their heavy losses in men and materiel and lengthening their lines of communication.

Two other great battles will develop before long, if the Nazis are able to keep up their present progress. The first is likely to be for Rostov, which lies close to the mouth of the Don river. Near the Sea of Azov. The other will be for Stalingrad, on the Volga river almost due east of the main spearhead of Von Bock's offensive.

However, Hitler still has a long way to go to reach Stalingrad, and then he is certain to have a colossal fight on his hands to reduce the city. All these things take time, and time is one thing which the fuehrer lacks.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—We got into a car and drove out through the high noon sun into the country and turned after awhile toward the sea until we came to a supply depot that stretched for four or five miles along an emergency line of track. Flanking the rails were heavy platforms, and on the platforms, as far as you could see, was the accumulated baggage of war—ready to be piled into the holds and on the decks of ships.

IT WAS not possible to count the great packing cases, most as large as piano boxes, others large enough to house a tank. They were there by the tens of hundreds. They had been switched in and deposited there in anticipation of a zero hour. They lay on the platforms with the high grass growing all around them and the sun beating down on them, and as far, too, as you could see were soldiers pacing through the heat of the day, guarding this all-important equipment.

These cases aren't there any more. A few days after I was out there I passed again, and the platforms were empty. The wild grass grew around the empty platforms. The rusty rails were bare of cars. That morning, earlier, we crossed the Hudson and were compelled to wait in midstream for a great ship that appeared dirty and patched in her camouflage to pass on her way to the outer harbor. I counted 47 life rafts swinging from her sides, and on her aft deck the rafts were stacked like wheat cakes. She was loaded for bear. The gun crews were at their stations. She swarmed with men. I don't know where she was going but I can tell you now that, wherever it was, she got there.

HERE'S a bit of anonymous nostalgia that came out of the postman's mail bag this morning. . . . From New Orleans. Unsigned: "Dear Mr. Tucker: Tonight I was riding in a street car. . . . Sixteen young men with mandolins and violins got on. . . . They were happy. . . . They were going home to England. We traveled together about twelve miles, and did they make those instruments talk! . . . The young man who sat in the seat with me was from Manchester. . . . His Lancashire dialect made me sit up and take notice, as I had lived in England for eight years. I was a race rider long before those boys were born, and possibly before their parents were. . . . It's 40 years since I came home. . . . I had two fingers broken. . . . My friends here gave me many good things, but I was too heavy for this side of the pond. I went broke, and gave up the racing game. But that dialect woke up long sleeping memories of pleasant days spent in England, with those long since passed on, and to hear one who was not born then, speaking a dialect long since forgotten, makes me feel sure there will always be an England. He had finished his training and he was going home to fight for his country. He was possibly 20 years old, and in civil life he had been a bank clerk. He and his friends all have my best wishes when they take the air, and my only regret is that I am too old to join them.

"Just an old man, long since forgotten."

Pledge To Double Output Shows Spirit of Russian War Workers

—By J. C. OESTREICHER

THERE is good news and bad coming from the steppes and wheat-fields of Soviet Russia as the giant armies of Germany and the Soviet union jockey into position for a major battle for the Caucasus.

While British and American planes step up the tempo of their attacks in Egypt and in China, the war's heaviest fighting continues in the long, undulating valley of the Don river.

The Soviet army newspaper Red Star admitted frankly that the danger in the south is "great," emphasizing that the Nazi threat at present embraces not only Stalingrad, but the whole Don basin, the Volga and the Kuban valley. This realistic attitude was reflected everywhere in Moscow. If the Germans succeed in the great battles now raging along the southern reaches of the Don, the danger to all Russia will be increased tenfold.

"But," as one official representing the popular determination and point of view put it, "we can stop the enemy."

An evidence of the Russian spirit was seen in the fact that munitions workers at Sverdlovsk voluntarily promised to increase their output from one and one-half to double the previous six months total. At the same time, it was revealed that all factories in the Urals have doubled and trebled their production records during the past few months.

It is upon production that outcome of the conflict depends.

The Germans are throwing everything they have into the battle south of Millerovo. But latest dispatches from Moscow said the Russians were fighting hard to check the advance. There was no indication that the enemy had reached Kamenskaya, south of Millerovo, or Likhoya, the important junction town, that connects with the main railway line to Stalingrad.

It was assumed that Likhoya is the German's immediate objective. The Nazi high command made no specific claims of important captures following the seizure of Voroshilovgrad. If Likhoya, 10 miles south of Kamenskaya, can be successfully defended, the Nazi threat to Stalingrad will be greatly diminished.

Voronezh continued to be the theater of unbroken Soviet successes. The amazingly successful defense of Voronezh is regarded by military observers as one of the major feats of the war.

A Farmer's Diary

Peach Borer

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I HAVE set aside this week to work on my orchard, of about 500 peach trees planted last year. They are all alive except perhaps a score, but some on the steeper slope are not so thrifty.

I dig approximately five inches deep for a radius of three feet about each tree and mow with a scythe within the row. Later I hope to plow between the rows, sow rye, and disk it under in the spring.

Since the last rain, the soil is rich and dark, like in the spring, with long fleshy roots of pea vines and wild brambles. When I step on the sharp-pointed shovel, it moves down into the soil with ease.

Purposely, when planting, I used surface soil to tamp about the roots and filled the hole only three-fourths full of dirt. Now the earth has crumbled on the higher side and filled the basin about the roots with fine silt to within an inch of the top. When I sank my shovel here, and lifted a portion out, I found it much more soft, moist and loose than the earth that had not been disturbed by cultivation.

One tree in a thrifty row had started well the spring I planted it, but this year died. I pried about the roots and lifted them out, partially rotted. Carefully I examined the base. I found where a worm had eaten its way up through the center and emerged two inches below the budded part. The larvae had escaped and no doubt in the form of moths will lay its eggs at the base of other trees.

I examined others, near the soil, and found some wounds in perhaps a dozen, where a jelly-like substance seals a hole the size of an eight penny nail. Sometimes particles of wood, like fine sawdust, mingle with this exuding sap.

This telltale opening is the result of a larva, just inside, that sucks the life of the tree and sometimes so weakens its anchorage that it blows over in a storm. Bases protected by fine screen wire extending a foot above the ground, may shut moths out. Many poison sprays have been tried, but not with great success.

SECOND FRONT PLANS SPEEDED TO AID RUSSIA

U. S. and British Officers In London Confer; Reds Fall Back In Caucasus.

Japanese were virtually in position to "press the button and start to move into Siberia." He pictured the Japanese lodgements in the Aleutian islands as a precaution against a possible flank attack on Japan by the United States.

Russian forces were locked with the foe in a hand-to-hand struggle today along both banks of the upper Don in the Voronezh area, trying to turn the northern flank of Germany's Caucasus drive as the Germans noted the possibilty of a Russian counter offensive.

The Russians were seeking to complete a counter-conquest of German bridgeheads across the upper Don and to exploit their own footholds west of Voronezh.

Obviously the Russians were trying to offset the offensive against Rostov, in the Caucasus, which the Germans said was being pressed from the west, north and east.

The Russians have acknowledged the drive on Rostov from the north.

This was implicit in Sunday's admission that Voroshilovgrad, 100 miles to the north, had fallen and in today's statement of Red Star, Russian army newspaper, that Marshal Timoshenko's men, fighting stubborn rearguard actions southwest of Voroshilovgrad, had withdrawn to new positions.

Evidently the Russians were retiring from the Voroshilovgrad sector to the hill country of the lower Donets basin.

The German people were being counseled against ill-founded hopes of quick victory in Russia.

"They (the Russians) are falling back deliberately with the obvious intention of making their real stand on the banks of the Don," Germany was told by a Berlin radio commentator identified as a General Dietmar.

"We must expect them in their own time to counter-attack with considerable forces."

It appeared to be the German view the Russians would make their major stand along the twisting big bend of the lower Don which flows into the Sea of Azov at Rostov unless, meanwhile, the Voronezh counter-attacks could be developed into a full-scale counter-drive of diversion.

The battle of Voronezh was taking precipitate but inconclusive turns. One Russian group which had driven German forces besieging Voronezh westward to the Don, then plunged into the river without waiting for support, swam and waded to the western bank, and there grappled with the foe.

The Russians claimed to hold the principal crossing of the Don in that region, threatening to cut the retreat of the enemy 10 miles further east before Voronezh.

Rumanians were reported rushed into action to reinforce battered German and Hungarian regiments south of the city in the "V" formed by the Don and its small tributary, the Voronezh river. The Russians were said to have made several crossings in this zone to strike at the enemy's prospective reinforcements on the west bank of the Don.

Russian dispatches reported the destruction of about 100 more tanks by the Russian air-infantry.

Surprising at a time when it might be supposed that Russia's entire air strength was needed for front line action was the Moscow raido's announcement that Russian bombers struck at the distant east Prussian port of Koenigsberg on Saturday night, setting off more than a dozen heavy explosions with their bombs and studding the city with 38 fires.

The German high command, stung by Russia's claims of the initiative in the Voronezh region and that the city was still in Russian hands, despite the German report of its capture days ago, said that those advices were "sheer invention."

On the northern reaches of the front, before Leningrad and south of Lake Ilmen, the Germans said, Russian attacks were repulsed in fighting which at times reached the hand-to-hand stage.

The air battle of western Europe, still far from the peak of fury envisioned by an authoritative estimate that the United States would produce not less than 1,000 four-motored bombers a month, nevertheless spread fresh destruction yesterday and last night in northwestern Germany and French coastal regions.

Some 200 Spitfires swarmed up the French coast from Le Havre northward to Le Treport yesterday, shooting up radio antennae at Fecamp and strafing gun posts and factories. These were followed last night by Wellingtons and American-made Bostons which struck again into occupied France and northwestern Germany.

New Troops Join A.E.F. In Ireland

WITH UNITED STATES FORCES IN NORTHERN IRELAND—(AP)—American pilots and negro troops have arrived here, swelling the ranks of United States invasion forces. There are air force maintenance crews with the pilots.

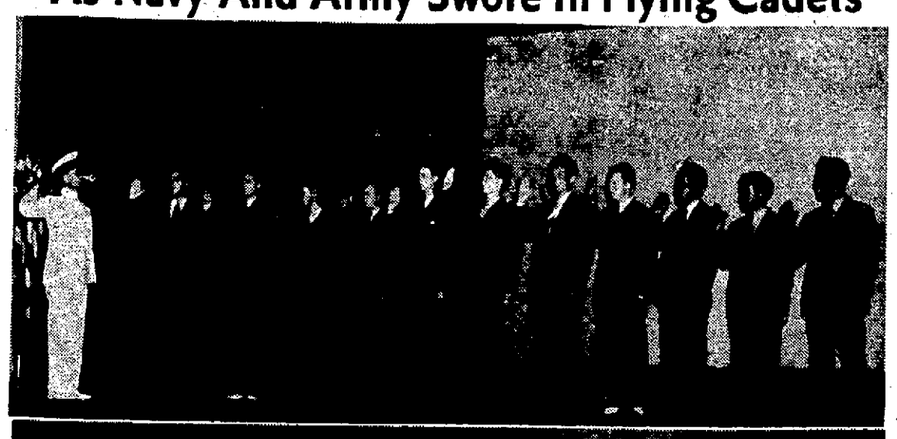
The pilots, drawn from all sections of the United States, are commanded by a 40-year-old colonel, who declared:

"You will hear from these fellows. They are among the best of the lot."

They immediately mingled with British forces, inspecting British planes and exchanging shop talk.

All expressed eagerness to get into the air immediately.

As Navy And Army Swore In Flying Cadets



Aviation recruiting took a spurt in Mansfield yesterday as both Army and Navy officials arrived in the city to swear in 21 aviation cadets. At the top Lieut. John Crawford of the naval aviation cadet selection board at Columbus, left, swears in 11 Mansfield area youths as a high point of last night's Naval Aviation program at John Simpson junior high school. Three others have already started cadet training. In the second photo Capt. Burch W. Beal of the Cleveland aviation army cadet examining board, swears in 10 new cadets for the army air reserve corps in ceremonies at the municipal airport this morning. Shown at the left of the picture is Sergt. Robert J. Hamarcek of Cleveland. In the third picture, Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, chairman of Mansfield's civilian defense committee, welcomes Lieut. Crawford to the city. Left to right are Chief Petty Officer William G. Cox of the Mansfield recruiting station; Lieut. A. M. Grossman, flight surgeon; Judge Kalbfleisch and Lieut. Crawford. In the photo below Arlene Davis, well-known woman flyer, climbs into one of the planes at the municipal airport. Mrs. Davis piloted Capt. Burch, also shown in the picture, on his trip here from Cleveland.

of the Civil Air Patrol, co-sponsors of Naval Aviation night.

High school graduates from Richland and five surrounding counties attended the meeting and saw a motion picture, "Sailors with Wings."

Lieut. Crawford traced a typical day in the life of a naval cadet and later outlined a mythical battle between a small United States task force and a large enemy fleet. In his description of the "battle," Lieut. Crawford showed how naval aerial strength can switch the odds in a modern sea fight.

Applicants must be between the ages of 16 and 27, be high school graduates, unmarried, citizens, and must pass physical and mental tests.

Examinations will be given at the hotel from 8:15 a. m. to 9 p. m. today and tomorrow. Information and initial interviews will be given in the lobby. If qualified, applicants will be given physical examinations.

While the naval officials were giving tests this morning, Army aviation authorities were swearing in 10 new Army Air Reserve corps cadets at the municipal airport.

Capt. Burch W. Beall of the Cleveland cadet selection board, flew in from that city piloted by Mrs. Arlene Davis, well-known woman flyer, and swore in the following: Wayne McBride, Thomas E. Wright, James H. Moore, and Charles J. McFadden, all of Mansfield; James F. Holland, Sharpsville, Pa.; Glenn H. Beecher, Leesburg, Pa.; Perry E. Draper, Perrysville; Joseph Merrick, Steubenville; Peter B. Narten, Cleveland; and Richard E. Parrish, Marion.

Among those sworn in as naval cadets last night were: Donald R. Geem, James LeMunyon, Samuel D. Miller, George M. Armbruster, Frederick Wright, all of Mansifeld; Rine Kruger and Eugene Smith of Galion; Harold B. Twining and Robert Breymaier of Bucyrus; and Raymond Clever of Lexington. Wilfred Garber, Mansfield; Charles Lawrence, Lexington; Robert Plice, Ashland; and Joseph Vernon of Gambier, have already been sworn in and are in training at the University of Iowa.

HEAR EVIDENCE

Military Court Ready For Nazi Saboteurs Defense.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The military commission trying eight persons accused of being submarine-landed Nazi saboteurs prepared today to hear evidence from the defense after devoting 11 days to hearing the government's case.

The commission adjourned yesterday with the announcement "it is anticipated that the defense will start introduction of its evidence tomorrow morning."

It announced that the prosecution formally rested its case yesterday, and that the commission then heard arguments on various motions made by the defense, which was taken by observers to be an indication that if dismissal of the charges had been sought it had been denied.

GRANTED PAY BOOST

MASSILLON — (AP) — Firemen here have been granted a five per cent pay boost by city council, but policemen have been passed by, temporarily at least.

About 200 million cubic feet of helium have been produced since its discovery, more than nine-tenths of it in the United States.

Claim Six United Nations Ships Sunk

LONDON—(INS)—The Berlin radio, according to Reuters news agency, today broadcast the text of a communique from Hitler's headquarters in which it was claimed that German submarines operating north of the Azores had attacked a strongly escorted United Nations convoy and sank seven ships.

It was asserted that the convoy was bound for Africa with war materials. The ships sunk, it was said, aggregated 35,000 tons.

The high command claimed also that a U-boat had penetrated into the St. Lawrence river and sank three ships totalling 15,000 tons.

"In the American area," it was added, "six ships aggregating 51,000 tons were sunk."

Jap Bombers Raid Port Moresby

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA — (INS)—The recent lull in activity in the southwest Pacific ended with a Japanese bombing attack on Port Moresby, a United Nations headquarters communique revealed today. The raid was carried out by 26 heavy bombers escorted by 15 Zero fighters, which attempted to knock out the Allied Airdrome. Damage was slight.

In other areas, the communique said, activity was limited to reconnaissance.

to $14,313. This year it was $13,386.

Since new textbooks have not been purchased for five years, the budget committee set up $9,000 for that purpose, an increase of nearly $6,000 over 1942, Bruce said: The board provides free textbooks for pupils.

The budget committee is requesting $8,000 for repairs to buildings and replacement of equipment next year as against $3,515 appropriated for the same purposes in 1942. Bruce explained that needed repairs were not made this year in the interests of economy, but they must be taken care of next year.

With a further reduction in the school debt, only $105,217 will be needed for bond and interest payments next year, a reduction of approximately $3,000 from the 1942 figure.

FORECASTERS

SANTA BARBARA, Cal.—(U.P.)—Officials of Los Padres National Park announce they have perfected a "fool-proof" system for predicting forest and brush fires.

It consists of a day-to-day check of the amount of moisture in inflammable material within a forest. Worked out on a scientific basis, this knowledge makes forecasts so accurately that fire-fighting forces can be sent to any district where a fire is possible.

'CATS' DOGGEDLY POUND AT JAPS

lives and planes. Every day new planes arrive to replace the fallen.

As might have been expected, the losses have been heavy—havier than the censor would care to let me say. Everybody who knew anything about it knew the Catalinas would have tough going against anti-aircraft and Jap fighting planes.

The Catalina is the navy's PBY, a huge, durable and far ranging airplane, ideal for long patrols and rough landings in these uneasy waters. But they can't have everything. They're big and slow too—and big slow airplanes make nice targets for the opposition.

In the first 48 hours of the invasion the Catalinas landed only when too tattered to fly any longer or when they ran out of fuel.

Many flew out into the fog and never came back. One was disabled at sea and when the crew landed and launched their rubber crash boat the Zeros machine-gunned the American fliers on the water.

In the third day the battle moved westward. The Catalinas drummed through the murky sky hour after hour seeking to re-establish contact with the Jap carriers, then hanging out somewhere in a snowstorm on the face of a cold front below Seguam island.

That day they began to carry torpedoes aboard planes not even designed for the relatively easier job of toting bombs.

On the fourth day the task force commander voiced his admiration for their well-nigh incredible durability.

"Your persistence of effort and general combat behavior has added its quota to the best pages of the traditions of the naval service. My personal thanks to all hands and I have every confidence you will continue to accomplish the impossible," he told them.

As the fifth day began the Catalinas' wing commander reported on the state of his force.

"Their superhuman endurance and doggedly heroic persistence in contacting and trailing the enemy day and night is all that has prevented the enemy attaining his immediate objective. Since the first contact Wednesday morning they have flown, worked and fought without surcease. Combat already has occurred in the darkness of the fifth morning. Their courage and morale remain high but their physical strength is fast waning," he said.

That day one Catalina found a large Jap sub on the surface and let a bomb go at about 400 feet. That was foolish for Catalinas aren't fast enough to get away from an explosion that close. She limped home with one engine disabled by her own bomb. There wasn't time to stay and see what happened to the sub.

Day after day the snooping Cats nosed out the carriers only to be met time and again by Zeros viciously determined to protect their floating airdrome.

On June 10 a Catalina found the first Jap ships in Kiska harbor. At the first contact only two large vessels lay inside guarded by two patrol boats at the harbor entrance.

Next day a Catalina discovered Jap landing forces on Attu at the very end of the Aleutian chain. Through fog, snow, rain, wan daylight and pale night the Cats have been freighting bombs to Kiska ever since.

They are taking a horrible pounding from the Ackack and Zeros. One came away with more than 100 bullet holes through hull wings and fittings. Another pilot beached his tattered plane and tersely reported "ship now landplane. Hull no longer waterproof."

Even before the Kiska bombing marathon began, the Catalinas began to take revenge for the beating they had suffered from the Japs. One shot down an attacking Zero fighter. One sank a submarine, the second sinking of the war of the mists, according to my information.

RUTH MARIE CURRY WEDS DR. WOLFORD

Pretty Ceremony In Cleveland Church Takes Place At 5:30 P. M. Monday; Couple Will Live In Carlisle, Pa.

THE BRIDEGROOM'S UNIFORM and the color scheme for the attendants' gowns gave a military touch to the wedding Monday of Miss Ruth Marie Curry and Dr. Robert W. Wolford in the Bethany English Lutheran church, Cleveland. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Curry, 6209 Quimby avenue, Cleveland. Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Wolford, 824 Park avenue west, are parents of the bridegroom.

Dr. Grover E Swoyer, pastor of the First English Lutheran church of this city, performed the double ring ceremony at 5:30 p. m. He was assisted by Dr. John H. L. Trout, pastor of the Bethany church. Ushers were Thomas E. Wolford of Mansfield, brother of the bridegroom, and Dr. John Paschold of City hospital, Cleveland, fraternity brother of Dr. Wolford. Miss Curry was attended by Miss Joan Grothe, maid of honor, and Miss Martha Sullivan, bridesmaid, both of Cleveland. Serving as best man for his brother was Richard H. Wolford of Cincinnati.

A 40-minute program of nuptial music preceded the service. Organists were Mrs. Richard H. Wolford and Mrs. Ralph Thanvette of Cleveland. The former played songs of Phi Gamma Delta, fraternity of the bridegroom. Selections by Mrs. Thanvette were "Ave Maria," "The Lord's Prayer," "Tell Me, Do You Love Me?" "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me." The traditional wedding marches were used for the processional and recessionals.

The lovely altar decorations included tapers in six candelabra, palms and ferns, and large vases of white gladioli. Mr. Curry gave his daughter in marriage.

Wedding gown of the new Mrs Wolford was a Puritan model of floor length white dotted Swiss fashioned with a basque waist, three-quarter length sleeves and a full skirt with short train. Her finger-tip veil of illusion was held in place with a halo of flowers and pearls. Only jewelry worn by the bride was a necklace of pearls, gift of the bridegroom. She carried a white orchid on a white Lutheran hymnal with a shower of white ribbons and stephanotis.

The attendants wore dotted Swiss gowns similar to that of the bride. Miss Grothe, who was in red and white, carried a bouquet of blue bachelor buttons and delphinium. Contrasting with her blue and white gown was Miss Sullivan's bouquet of red gladioli and white delphinium. Each attendant had a cluster of flowers in her hair to match her bouquet. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Curry selected a black and white silk ensemble with matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses and blue delphinium. Mrs. Wolford's crepe suit was white and purple. She had purple accessories and a corsage of Rubrum lilies.

At 6:30 p. m., the reception and wedding supper were held at the Lake Shore hotel in Lakewood. Supper was served buffet style to 80 guests. The all-white decorations carried out the military motif. A miniature bride with bridegroom in uniform topped the wedding cake.

Dr Wolford and his bride are on a Great Lakes cruise. Traveling costume of the bride was a turf brown silk suit with green and white accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid. The couple will visit in Mansfield before going to Carlisle, Pa., where Dr. Wolford will enter service as a first lieutenant in the medical corps of the United States army. They will be there one month.

The former Miss Curry is a graduate of the Cleveland City Hospital School of Nursing and has been a nurse at that hospital. The bridegroom received his bachelor of arts degree from Wittenberg college, where he became a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, and was graduated from the Jefferson Medical college at Philadelphia, Pa., where he became affiliated with Alpha Kappa Kappa, medical fraternity. He has now completed his internship at the Cleveland City hospital.

Richard Wolfe Weds July 17

Mansfield friends of Richard K. Wolfe, former resident and frequent visitor here, will be interested to learn of his marriage to Miss Christine Roesch of Sandusky. The wedding was an event of July 17. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Roesch of Sandusky and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Fred W. Wolfe of Huron and the late Mr. Wolfe.

Mansfielders who aattended the ceremony at 7 p. m. in the Sandusky Lutheran church were Mr. and Mrs Allen Bond and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conklin, Richard Morgan and Norman L. Wolfe. The newlyweds are residing in Sandusky. Mr. Wolfe expects to enter army service soon.

Couple's Exchange Of Vows In 1941 Announced Today

Announcement is made today of the marriage of Miss Frances Meggitt and Sgt. James Whittaker, which was solemnized in Napoleon on Dec. 27, 1941. Mrs. Whittaker is the daughter of Mrs. Madeline Meggitt, 185 West Third street. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Whittaker of Sandusky are parents of the bridegroom.

Reverend Kuntz performed the ceremony in the parsonage of the Lutheran church. The couple was unattended. For the wedding, the bride was attired in a black silk suit with white lace trimming. Her accessories were black and she wore a corsage of gardenias.

Both Sergeant and Mrs. Whittaker are graduates of Sandusky high school. Mrs. Whittaker is employed in the office of the Ohio Brass company and her husband is in the infantry at Camp Wolters, Mineral Wells, Tex.

Former Resident Marries July 13

Mr. and Mrs John A. Pease, Jefferson township and formerly of Mansfield, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary, to Sgt. Albert W. Kipp of the Army Medical Corps. The wedding took place July 13 at Long Beach, Calif., in a small chapel of the First Methodist church with Dr. George N. McDonald officiating.

The bride is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and of the school of education at Ohio Northern university, Ada. Sergeant Kipp, son of Mrs. Rosa Kipp, McComb, is a graduate of McComb high school and the pharmacy school at Ohio Northern. At present he is located at the station hospital of the Air Corps Ferrying Command in Long Beach. The bride will remain there indefinitely.

How to Entertain On Sultry Days

With practice black-outs and gas rationing, everyone is spending more and more time at home this summer We have become so accustomed to gadding around the countryside in recent years that it will probably be a refreshing experience to realize that home offers as much, if not more, pleasure.

How long has it been since you really used your porch? Put a coat of paint on the porch furniture and you'll see that it isn't as bad-looking as you first thought. Then, relax and enjoy it! But don't keep it all to yourself. Ask your friends in—have a porch party.

It's really the logical way to entertain in the summer, for the porch is usually the coolest and most comfortable place in the house. The whole affair may be very informal—and inexpensive, too. Refreshments need not be elaborate. The one essential on hot, sultry evenings is that there are plenty of tall, cooling drinks. Bottled soft drinks are quick and easy to serve. Best of all, everyone likes them.

To make your party more festive, use your originality. Put the bottles of carbonated beverages in a colorful bucket. Or you can use your dish pan. Surround the bottles with ice, bring them out on the porch, and let your friends serve themselves. Carbonated beverages are a particularly good choice for such a party for, besides eliminating the fuss and bother of making punch or some other beverage, soft drinks quench thirst quickly. Their fizzy tang makes them more refreshing.

Add a big bowl of popcorn or some sandwiches, and your party is "made." Simple affairs, such as porch parties, are going to be in order this summer. We are all trying to economize so we can buy more war bonds and stamps. Give a porch party. It is sure to make a big hit with your friends.

CIRCLE FIVE TO MEET.

Circle Five of the Central Methodist church will hold a picnic dinner Thursday noon at 12:30 at the home of Mrs. G. T. Mast, 401 West Fifth street.

Plans were made for the formal installation dinner to be held Aug. 24. Chairman for the committee will be Mrs. Bethea assisted by Mrs. McGinty and Mrs. Schwaner On Aug. 3 a swimming party will be held at Armstrong Grove. Contests were enjoyed during the evening with prizes being awarded to the Misses Virginia Gerke and Monoka Spurgeon.

Luncheon was served at a long table decorated in rainbow colors with a floral centerpiece. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs Schwaner, 224½ West Fifth street. She will be assisted by Mrs. McGinty.

Navy Mothers Have Meeting In Church

Twenty-four members and one newcomer, Mrs. Florence Baumberger, were present for the meeting Monday night of the Navy Mothers' club in the Central Methodist church. Mrs. Florence Blunk, president, was in charge. Report of the Navy convention held recently in Akron, was given by Mrs. Blunk and Mrs. Gladys Underwood.

Plans were made to have an imaginary cake sale. The next meeting will take place at the church on Aug. 3. Hostesses will be Mrs. William Fry, Mrs. Charles Fichter and Mrs. Biddle.

WILLING WORKERS MEET.

Willing Workers of the Little Washington church will have an all-day meeting Thursday. There will be a covered-dish dinner and quilting. Outdoor Sunday school and church services will be held at 10:30 Sunday morning in the Vern Richey woods. Dinner will be served at 12 o'clock.

COUPLE EXCHANGES VOWS IN WYOMING

Miss Lillian Booz Becomes Bride of Pvt. Richard R. Poling in Chapel at Fort Francis E. Warren on July 11.

WITH THE RETURN of the bride to this city, announcement is being made of the marriage of Miss Lillian N. Booz and Pvt. Richard R. Poling, which was solemnized on July 11 at Fort Francis E. Warren, Cheyenne, Wyo. Scene of the wedding was Argonne chapel at the fort. Chaplain H. G. Schwegler, a Lutheran minister, performed the ceremony at 9:30 p. m.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Perry Poling of Cheyenne, friends of the bridegroom. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Booz, 199 Bowman street, was attired in a black suit with black and white accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of roses. A light blue dress was worn by Mrs. Poling, whose accessories were white.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Poling, 104 Marion avenue, are parents of the bridegroom. Friends who attended the wedding were Carroll M. Boone, Hudson J. Yost, jr., and Earymond H. Carrow, all stationed at Fort Francis E. Warren, and Miss Violet Kirk of Cheyenne. Announcement of the marriage was made at a dance for Company E, of which Private Poling is a member, when the newlyweds and their friends attended following the ceremony.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Poling are graduates of Mansfield Senior high school. The former attended Ohio Wesleyan university and is a member of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity. He is now in the quartermaster corps of the United States Army. Mrs. Poling returned to Mansfield Monday and will reside with her parents while her husband is in the service. She is employed in the office of the Humphryes Manufacturing company.

Committee Plans Future Meetings

Hospital Guide committee of the Women of the Moose held their first meeting of the year with Mrs. Opal Stentz, Lexington avenue, as hostess for a steak fry last evening. Hereafter meetings will be held the third Monday of each month.

Aug. 17, the next meeting, will be held at the home of Mrs. Audrey Wright, 750 Maple street. During the business meeting, Mrs. Josephine Schomer was elected reporter and Mrs. Eva Schultz, secretary. The committee decided to sell war bonds and stamps on Aug. 9 at the Madison theater. They also plan to help with Red Cross relief work.

STUDENT MUSIC CLUB.

The Student Music club met Sunday at Middle park for their July picnic. In charge of arrangements was Miss Mildred Hart. Guests and two members, now in Dayton, James Thomas and Miss Mary Ann Boebel, were present. The next meeting will be held Sept. 20, place to be announced.

Youth Club Plans Outdoor Meeting

Approximately 35 members and several guests of the Richland County Youth Cooperative met in the Trades Council hall on North Park street last evening. Mr. Miller of the Richland County Farm Bureau spoke about the annual camp meetings, which will be held the first part of August. Those interested were requested to leave their names.

A collection of sales tax stamps was taken. It was announced that the board meeting would be July 27 at the home of Evelyn and Lloyd Schaaf, Vernon Junction near Shelby. An outdoor meeting will be held Aug. 3 with Bob Scott, Lexington and Springmill roads. Following the business session, dancing occupied the evening. Records were furnished by Miss Jackie Nickols.

Advice To Drugstore Cowgirls

WRONG! A gooey sundae is no adequate lunch for a bright young working girl.

RIGHT; Salad plate of sliced eggs, tuna, lettuce, tomatoes has needed vitamins.

By VIVIAN BROWN
(Wide World Features Writer)

Hi-yo, all you drugstore cowgirls! And other members who qualify for the snatch-a-quick lunch club.

Now that the druggist is no longer just a purveyor of pills and the "juke-box" era has transformed his once drab store into a softly lighted, leather cushioned salon, you've taken over his establishment lock, stock and barrel. You can be found there at breakfast, lunch and snack hour maneuvering a place near the best looking "apothecary-jerk" (the wavy haired Gable behind the fountain).

Independence (and more oft' the figure) is lost from the moment you wangle a seat until you are smilingly handed a check. A "soda-jerker" is not paid to be a dietician but more often than not the management expects him to be an amateur psychologist: a combination of Fred Allen and the Voice of Experience.

You develop a confidence in him that is unshakeable and you eat anything he recommends. Usually his prescription is "adlib." If he calls out "Short Blush" and "Wreck a Pair" you are heir to a cherry phiz and scrambled eggs. If he adds a dash of ammonia to your "phiz" with the advice that it will help you resist the heat, you feel 20 degrees cooler, a few seconds later

For 45 cents (a sandwich, no butter, no lettuce and a chocolate sundae) you feel you are well fed. You haven't glanced at the menu because you are more concerned with how you can get to the dime store, be manicured and shop in the time allotted for lunch.

Why not play the new vitamin game with your favorite "soda-jerker"? Learn his "sling-o" and beat him to the "punch."

For instance, tell him you'd like Adam and Eve on a raft (poached eggs on toast). If not hungry, have Eve, with or without the raft. This, plus fruit salad and a glass of milk should alleviate those four o'clock hunger pangs and send you scurrying back to work full of vitamins and energy.

Better yet, order a crisp salad plate and tomato juice or a peanut butter and bacon sandwich and a cup of vegetable soup. You'll find proper nutrition pays dividends in health, and a wisely planned lunch will help keep you fit as a fiddle and ready for come-what-may.

Loves Older Girl; Keeps Age Secret

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm 20 years old and deeply in love with a girl of 25. She's pretty, popular and has a charming personality, and at times looks only 19. I've been brought up with older boys and am mature for my age. I have no parents and live with my sisters.

I find this girl to be kind, cheerful, understanding and just the right sort to make up for all the lonely hours I've spent. We've kept steady company for over a year, and she has promised to marry me, but so far I have kept my age a secret. I don't know whether it would make any difference if she knew.

I intend to get a good defense job and we're planning on getting married this year. Do you think we should go through with it? I've tried going out with girls my age, but they don't interest me at all. J. R.

With older people a difference of five years on the feminine side of the ledger does not particularly count. You speak of this good defense job as something in the future. Have you positive assurance you'll get it, or is it a case of wishful thinking? At your age, you're likely to be drafted, whether you have a defense job in view or not.

Better consider this step well before taking it. Do not marry without telling the young lady your correct age.

Fears Husband Has Other Wife.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My husband and I have been married for five years and have a little boy. We eloped to marry, because he came from a wealthy family and my parents are poor.

Every once in a while I hear rumors that my husband was married before and has a child. When I mention it to him, he just brushes the question aside quickly. He took a trip to another country before I met him, and I think it might have happened there.

Please tell me how to find out, because it drives me frantic with worry. I know something is on his mind.

I think he's sending money to someone. We keep our money in a safety deposit vault, and he manages it and I don't know how much he gets. When he was out of work recently, he always had money, so I know he must have quite a bit. His mother, my parents, sister and even some of his friends know what's bothering him, but I know nothing about it. F. S.

Why listen to these various rumors? If they were true, it seems to me you would be told definitely. Bigamy is a pretty serious offense, and as several people know about it, it's bound to cause a definite inquiry. So far you've heard only gossip and innuendo. Try to put these things out of your mind.

Your husband has probably not told you what money he has because he sees how ready you are to believe gossip and rumor.

Waiting For Decree.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm in love with a man who is getting a divorce from his wife. The decree will be final in August. He has a little girl, who is with his wife, and he pays a certain amount for her each week.

Now he tells me that he can't see me any more until after the divorce, because his wife threatens to make trouble for him if he takes out other women before the final decree is awarded. Is this true, Miss Fairfax, or is he just using that for an excuse not to come over and see me? S. G.

While parties are waiting for a decree of divorce to be made final, they feel it's the better part of wisdom to be extremely circumspect. Your inquiry shows that you do not fully trust this man. Don't you think it would be well to make up your mind more definitely before you decide to marry him?

BEAVERS COST MAN $50 EACH

PRESQUE ISLE, Me.—(U.P.)—The largest fine for a trapping offense within Maine was paid recently by Lyden B. Hardwick, Chicago salesman. He pleaded guilty to illegal beaver trapping and was fined $1,150 for allegedly trapping 23 beavers in the fall of 1939.

Large Stocks of Evaporated Milk Ready for Use

Large stocks of evaporated milk are now available for immediate consumption. To the thrifty housewife this means a saving on the milk bill and treats for the family in the form of many milk-rich foods which stick to the ribs and help build strong muscles and bones in growing children.

You may be wondering why, in these days of tin and steel shortages, evaporated milk is plentiful. Here are the reasons. In this war, America is the food arsenal of the world. We must produce everything needed for war to the very utmost of our strength and resources and this includes food. Our farmers must produce milk and more milk—nothing can be allowed to curtail production and the same applies to the processors and manufacturers of dairy products.

There will be need for all this milk either for our armed forces, our allies, or our domestic consumption. We can't always tell in advance just which form of milk—fresh, evaporated, dried—or cheese or butter will be needed for the fighting men. Demands change according to which part of the world we are fighting in, how many ships we have available, climate, and other factors. Thus, here at home, we may find a surplus first of one and then another food product. We can help by using those which are not needed at the moment by the war effort.

This is where evaporated milk comes in. Last year the British needed huge amounts. Our farmers and manufacturers increased production almost 100 per cent to meet this need. Right now the British can not take the milk as fast as it is being produced and as a result, our government has huge stocks of evaporated milk on hand. According to Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, this is nothing to cause great concern. "I would much rather worry," he said recently, "about having too much good food than about not having enough. Those extra cases of evaporated milk are an added assurance that everyone in this country will have enough food."

Milk is the basis for a balanced diet and contributes more than any other single food to health and well being. Good nutrition is an important part of the war program. The defense of America requires a healthy and strong people. The kind of food people eat determines their strength and reserve energy; therefore eating the right food in the right quantity becomes the patriotic duty of every citizen.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

AS THE DOOR closed behind my father and Ruth Hayes, Ronald rushed over to me and put his arm around my shoulders.

"You must lie down, Aunt Madge, and let me get you—what—smelling salts—a dose of aromatic ammonia—brandy? I know what to do for Mother, and I know you must have something. I never saw anybody so white?

He impelled me toward the couch and I twisted free of him and sank down in the nearest chair.

"Just let me sit here," I said. "I am perfectly all right, and my pallor is the result of anger, not weakness. I am appalled at myself. I did not know I had the desire for murder in me."

"But you need—" he said.

"I need nothing," I told him, "save to pull myself together. But if you'll hand me my purse I'll take out the lavender smelling salts I always carry to keep from falling asleep while driving."

Reproaches Her Father

He brought the purse to me, his face still anxious and demurring, and I took a deep whiff of the salts, chiefly to gratify him. When my father opened the door and saw this he hastened toward me.

"Margaret!" he said, his voice sharp with anxiety. "This has been too much for you."

"Please sit down, both of you," I said sharply. "I am perfectly all right, only so filled with anger at that woman that I find difficulty in breathing. And — you let her go." I finished reproachfully.

"I let her go the length of her chain," he said significantly.

"Oh. I might have known," I said "You mean you are having her trailed."

Ruth Being Trailed

"Every step of whatever tortuous ways she means to pursue," he answered.

"You think that may lead you to Jack?" I asked hesitantly.

"She has no more idea of Jack's whereabouts than — we have," he said, and I indexed for further consideration his slight hesitation. "But she is an agent of the gang hunting him, possibly the most dangerous one because of her personal venom against him.

"Trailing her may put us into contact with other members of the gang besides Stephen Redfield and the gifted Mr. Milner."

With sudden determination I braced myself for conflict.

"Look here, Father," I said. "I told you a little while back that when I could stand it no longer, I meant to ask you to release me from my promise not to tell Katharine about your proof that the letter she received purporting to come from Jack was forgery."

Overheard by Katharine

I braced myself to meet his displeasure, but he was surprisingly mild.

"What about Katharine?" he asked. "Is she near the breaking point also?"

"Indeed she is," I answered. "Only her will power is keeping her up."

"Then," my father said judicially, "she probably will be in a receptive mood to hear the truth. You know as well as I do that she would not have listened to either of us before."

I looked at him tensely, "you are giving me permisison to tell Katharine the truth?"

"To tell me what truth," Madge?" Katharine said from the door.

You Can Reduce Without Going On Strict Diet

Summer is a good time of year to reduce. It's easier to eat less, for the body need less of warming fuel-food. At the same time, opportunities for excercise increases.

Cutting down on your calories is always the first step in a sensible reducing program. But starvation diets should be avoided, especially during hot weather when the need for some vitamins increase (particularly vitamin B1) and minerals lost through perspiration must be replaced. A certain amount of energy-food such as bread, should be included too, to guard against possible acidosis-like conditions. Build your summer reducing meals around a well-balanced assortment of foods, and you'll take off those extra pounds without suffering the enervating effects of summer heat.

Following is a sample set of well-balanced reducing menus suggested by Dr. James A. Tobey, prominent authority on diet and health. You'll find these menus satisfactory and appetizing—yet they total only about 1500 calories, or just half the amound needed by an average adult to maintain normal weight. Important foods included are enriched white bread (which supplies energy, minerals and vitamin B-)—pasteurized milk—fruits and vegetables (valuable for vitamins)—and lean meat, cheese, and egg (sources of necessary protein). It's easy to plan your own reducing menus.

Foods You Can Serve At Picnic

By BETSY NEWMAN

Picnic time is here, and of course we're going to eat out-of-doors, even though it's only in our own back yards. We're discovering our legs, too, and many of us will be finding delightful nearby places that have been unnoticed for years, merely because we've been so busy going miles and miles in our autos to see some much more heralded park or grove. I'm giving you some recipes to take on that picnic lunch, and wishing you happy landings and a jolly time!

Today's Menu.

Scalloped Potatoes and Ham
or Boiled Hamburgers
Potato Chips if you don't take Scalloped Potatoes
Sliced Bermuda Onions or Mixed Salad
Hermits or Banbury Tarts
Fruit Coffee

Scalloped Potatoes and Ham.

8 potatoes
Good-sized slice of ham
1 pt. milk
Pepper or Paprika
1 tbsp. butter
¾ tsp. salt
Bread or Cracker Crumbs or Corn Flakes

Peel potatoes and slice thinly, cut ham into small pieces. Butter baking dish, arrange alternate layers of potatoes and ham, sprinkling each layer of potatoes with salt and pepper or paprika. Have bottom and top layers potatoes. Heat milk to boiling point, melt butter in it, and pour over potatoes and ham until milk is level with top layer. Top with crumbs or crumbled corn flakes and bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees F. To carry to the picnic, wrap in clean tea towel and then in several folds of newspaper, in such a manner that the papers may afterwards be turned in to the collectors as waste paper.

Hermits.

1 or 1½ c. honey
¾ c. butter or other fat
2 eggs
½ c. sour milk
1 tsp. soda
3 c. enriched flour
1 tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. allspice
2 tsp. cinnamon
½ c. raisins
½ c. currants
½ c. nut meats

Let fat stand at room temperature until softened, then gradually cream in honey; beat eggs and add, then add part of the sour milk, then flour which has been sifted, mixed with soda and spices and sifted again. Add fruit and nuts last, with a little of the flour sifted over them. Drop by teaspoons on greased baking sheet and bake at 350 degrees F. for about 15 minutes or until brown.

Banbury Tarts.

Rich pastry
1 c. chopped raisins
¾ c. honey
3 tbsps. cracker crumbs
1 slightly beaten egg
1 tbsp. melted butter or margarine
Few grains salt
2 tbsps. lemon juice
1 tsb. grated lemon rind

Make pastry and roll thin, then cut in 3-inch squares. Combine remaining ingredients for filling, and put a spoonful on each square of pastry, fold into triangle, press edges together; prick several times to allow steam to escape, and bake in hot oven, 450 degrees F., until baked through and nicely browned, about 15 minutes.

HOROSCOPE

FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 22

Exceptional opportunity for expanding the position and prestige is promised. This may be accompanied by financial growth and credit. Matters aimed at this end should be extremely lively and eventful, probably through travel, contacts and agreements, through agencies, communications, writings and other meritorious contracts or correspondence.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a successful and prosperous year if they will take advantage of glowing and expansive conditions. There are signs of increase of funds and credit, with new programs of brilliant ideas having appeal from those in power and high station. Also there may be advancement by means of travel, writings, agencies and new ventures.

A child born on this day should have much practical versatility, with lofty ambitions and much acumen. Its friendly nature may invite imposition or fraud.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BY Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A MESS OF POTTAGE

When your side can make a vulnerable small slam, it is selling your birthright for a mess of pottage if you content yourself with merely beating not vulnerable opponents a few doubled tricks. It may be that you cannot score your slam wtihout playing like the very dickens; but whoever expected to deserve any kind of reward unless he exerted himself somewhat?

	♠ A J 9 6 5 ♥ K A ♦ A K 4 ♣ 8 6 4
♠ 7 ♥ J 8 5 ♦ Q J 9 8 7 ♣ 6 Q 9 7	N W E S	♠ K 8 4 2 ♥ 10 9 7 3 ♦ 2 ♣ 10 5 3 2
	♠ Q 10 3 ♥ A Q 6 ♦ 5 3 2 ♣ A K J 10

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	2 ♦
Dbl	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	5 NT	Pass
6 ♥	Pass	6 NT

That is not the way the bidding went at one table of a duplicate game. There South passed his partner's double of 2-Diamonds, and the contract was beaten only three tricks, for a score of 500 points, insignificant compared with what North and South can make in playing the deal themselves, as at the table where the bidding was as given above.

Against the No Trump small slam, West led the diamond Q. South, seeing the importance of spade tricks, led to the heart A so he could finesse the spade Q. When that lost to the K, he decided that West, lacking that card, probably had the doubly guarded club Q as an adjunct to the suit he sued for an overcall. If so, a squeeze was in sight.

Planning for that, he won the returned club with the A, scored the heart K, spade 10, heart Q, and then three more spades, discarding the last two diamonds from his own hand. West, with the diamond J-9, could not afford to throw one of them when he could see the K-8 in dummy. So he tossed a club from his Q-9, so that, after the diamond K won, the club 8 to the K dropped the Q, and the J took the final trick.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ Q J 6 3 ♥ 8 6 4 ♦ K 8 ♣ J 5 3 2
♠ A K 10 9 4 ♥ Q 7 3 ♦ Q 10 2 ♣ K 4	N W E S	♠ 8 7 5 2 ♥ K J 10 2 ♦ J 9 7 ♣ 9 8
	♠ None ♥ A 9 5 ♦ A 6 5 4 3 ♣ A Q 10 7 6

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the soundest lead by West against South's 5-Clubs on this deal? What principle is exemplified by the result of it?

Parents May Cause Child To Suffer

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Our human frailties keep us from being as good parents as we ought to be. Without knowing it, we do many things to annoy our children and to destroy their personality.

The baby, long before, he utters his first word, asks questions and interprets his environment by gestures and grunts. The effort of the little child at expression, therefore, often seem quite strange to us. He appears to know so little; we so much. We are amused by his questions and remarks which to him are serious and are not meant to be funny. So to ridicule the helpless child makes us feel important and superior.

What savages some parents are! The mother who has never smiled at her child's mistakes ought to be lauded.

Social Suffering.

You and I may have suffered in some social situation, much as the child suffers when we laugh at his mistakes. At a party you observe an exchange of smiles between two persons following a remark of yours. You, indeed, may discover immediately what you said that made them smile. In that event you are overwhelmed. You wish you had kept quiet, and you resolve to be more careful when you speak again. The chances are, however, you won't know what caused their smile, except that it was something that you said or did. You feel that it must have been something stupid. So you go on worrying about yourself.

All evening you suffer and accuse yourself of having been foolish. You wish that you could quickly disappear. You have a constant dread lest you might again do something or say something to cause more ridicule. Next time you are at a similar gathering, next time you attempt to speak before anyone whom you don't know very well, you are going to be more cautious.

Risk of Laughter.

To this day you and I often feel ourselves keeping very quiet, when to express an opinion, or to ask a question, would enlarge our wisdom wonderfully. We don't want to run the risk of being laughed at. So to be on our guard makes us feel inferior, makes us suffer, harms our personality.

We parents do not want our children to endure the needless pain we have endured, to have the fear of people that we have had. Let us, therefore, struggle with ourselves to see that we may learn to be so considerate of the feelings of the little child that no matter how funny anything he says may appear to us, we won't laugh at him. Let us try to build up personaltiy in our children, not destroy it.

A selected list of books on personality and mental health may be had by writing me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Q. We live on the corner of a very large unfenced yard. The street in front of the yard is a highway. I have tried training my 2-year-old daughter to stay in the back where I can watch her but she insists on running away.

A. Let everything else go for about a week. Always be right by the child when she is out at play. Show her the tree, stone or other mark beyond which she must never go unguarded. The moment she crosses the line spank her. Never warn her; let her always get instant pain as she crosses the line.

Hair Health Depends on Nutrition

By MME. QUIVIVE

There are plenty of bald-headed men who are strong and healthy yet physicians tell us that the general health has much to do with the state of the brain wool. They suspect that a diet deficiency may start the thinning process, as it may have something to do with the premature arrival of silver threads. Hair specialists say that a large percentage of male patients are finicky eaters, have a distaste for vegetables and green salads, do not get the vitamins and mineral salts upon which the hirsute thatch may depend for sustenance. Some day we'll know more about the matter.

Cats and dogs that are undernourished have poor, thin coats. When they are given proper care, good food and daily doses of cod liver oil, their coats become thick, lustrous and beautiful. If this rule applies to animals why not to humans? Sounds reasonable.

Certain it is that hair can show signs of illness the same as other parts of the body. Hair that is so dry that it breaks at the touch of a comb or hair that lacks sheen and looks lifeless is practically sick abed. When it falls in excess it is in need of professional attention.

Hair specialists say that the reason men go bald and women don't is because women take better care of their locks and eat a more varied diet.

If the requirements of the hair are the same as requirements of the teeth it would be well to drink a quart of milk a day to add calcium to the diet, to eat one egg, take orange or tomato juice, have two vegetables for luncheon and dinner.

Scrupulous cleanliness of hair and scalp is imperative if the glorious crest is to stay in form. A shampoo once a week will do no harm; in fact, a rousing shampoo with plenty of friction is a scalp treatment in itself. Sweat and sebaceous glands are constantly exuding oils and waste products which must be removed, else dandruff will form. Dandruff may not be a serious menace, but it provides a convenient lodging for bacteria that may set up infections of one kind or another.

If dandruff is present, even in a small degree, friction hot mineral oil into the scalp the night before the shampoo. The oil will soften the scales so that the suds will more easily remove them.

Be fussy about the shampoo medium. All soaps are not suitable for washing the hair. Place a bar in a quart mason jar, fill the jar with hot water, let stand three days before using. Pour off the clear top liquid, add a little hot water. Use plenty of elbow grease when applying.

Have three soapings, as many rinsings with a bath spray and a strong current of water. A spray is more effective than a shower.

42 ASHLANDERS INDUCTED INTO ARMED SERVICE

Leave For Fort Benjamin Harrison To Start Training.

ASHLAND—Forty-two men, inducted into the armed service July 6, left Ashland yesterday for Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., to be assigned to training camps. The men took advantage of the 14-day inactive duty period now allowed by the government following induction.

Three more men will leave tomorrow, their 14-day furlough not being up until then as they were inducted at a later date following further examination.

Ten of the 13 men who were held over for more detailed examination of the July 6 quota have been accepted for army service.

They are: Howard Deverne Zimmerman, Carl Edward Henthorn, Fred Herschel Mount, Mathew Clarence Resick and Adrian Vance McCammon, Ashland; Karl Frederick Hanville, Nova; James Lester Brindle, Lakewood; George Herbert Zehner, Ashland, R. D. 4; Harland Herman McWilliams, Savannah, and Robert Soka, Polk, R. D. 1.

One of the 13 was rejected. No report has been received on the other two.

The Ashland county draft board has received an official call for over 100 men on Aug. 7 and also 18 1-B registrants, the latter to be classed in most cases for noncombatant service thus releasing 1-A men for active duty. The August selectees will report at a Cleveland induction station.

* * *

Marshall V. Mohn, L. S. Walton and E. H. Taylor compose a committee which has charge of the collection of old records for Harry Higgins Post, American Legion.

Quota of the post is 7,300 records. The drive, sponsored by the national organization, is to take place July 20 to August 2. The national goal is 37,500,000 old records.

The Legion Auxiliary committee will be Mrs. H. O. Hoffman, Mrs. Ray V. Keen and Mrs. W. D. Hoskin, while the Forty-and-Eight committee will be Fred Y. Brown, Leo Stout and Harry Oborn.

Proceeds from the disposal of the old records as scrap will be used in purchasing new records and phonograph players to be sent to army camps, bases, posts and stations.

DRAFT PROJECT FOR REMOVAL OF CAR RAILS

Half Mile of Old Trackage To Be Salvaged By WPA at Shelby.

SHELBY—Some 3,000 feet of old car rails will be removed from the city streets here, Mayor W. R. Morris told city council at its semi-monthly meeting Monday night at City hall.

Mayor Morris said that the WPA had approved a project to remove the old street car rails on Smiley avenue, Park avenue, Mack avenue, Tucker avenue and Mohican street.

The scrap metal will be salvaged for war purposes.

An ordinance adopting the budget for operation of the city government during 1943, totaling $99,770, was approved. The tentative budget with the same figures was passed by the council earlier this month.

The budget sets up $81,270 in the general fund, $16,500 for bond retirement, $1,500 for the police pension and $500 for the firemen's pension fund.

Resolutions authorizing sewer improvements on West Madison avenue and Walnut street were adopted.

Finance Director Chester P. Monn was authorized by the council to transfer $1,000 from the general fund to the relief fund.

Mayor Morris told council that a grade for a sidewalk had been established on Leichty avenue from the Boulevard into Seltzer park and that a sidewalk would be constructed on the west side of the street.

VACATION AT LAKE

CRESTLINE — Mr. and Mrs. Max Levant and daughter, Betty, are spending a week's vacation at Cedar Point.

THEATERS

Stage Appearance.

Shep Fields and his "new music" takes over the Madison stage today. The popular maestro, who introduced a new type of music while his "rippling rhythm" was still in its hey day, appears with his band of nine saxophones and four rhythm instruments at four performances. The supper hour show is scheduled for 5:10 p. m., and the last two performances at 7:30 p. m. and 9:45 p. m. Ralph Young, baritone, is soloist of the organization that eliminates brass from its instrumentation. "Parachute Nurse" with Marguerite Chapman and William Wright is the film attraction.

Sea Epic.

Thrilling epic of the days more than a century ago when the Florida keys were infested with salvage pirates preying on this country's shipping, "Reap the Wild Wind," the Ohio attraction, shows how brave men and an intrepid girl eliminated the "rattlesnakes" of the sea and saved maritime shipping. John Wayne, Ray Milland, and Paulette Goddard head tremendous cast of this production which is filmed in brilliant Technicolor. Walter Hampden, Lynne Overman and Louis Beavers are among the players.

Dramatic Story.

The story of the men who faced ridicule and opposition in their struggle to establish the first steamship line is dramatically depicted in "Sons of the Sea," opening Wednesday at the Ritz. Featuring Michael Redgrave and Valerie Hobson the production was made in England. "Mississippi Gambler," the co-feature stars Kent Taylor in the role of a newspaper reporter out to "get" a band of killers. Claire Dodd and Frances Langford are cast.

Screwball Comedy.

"Three Cockeyed Sailors," a screwball comedy of three British tars who do too much celebrating while on shore leave and eventually find themselves on a German battleship instead of their own, is now showing at the Park. Michael Wilding, Tommy Trinder and Claude Hulbert play the trio and Carla Lehmann provides the romantic interest. Alexander Korda's "Jungle Book," based on Kipling's story by the same name is the co-attraction. Sabu, Joseph Calleia and Patricia O'Rourke are featured.

FAIR OR FOUL

By LAWTON CARVER
INS Sports Editor

(Pinch-Hitting for Rex Hess, Sports Podger.)

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — Bandaged up like a herd of mummies, the Brooklyn Dodgers limped back into Ebbets Field from the west today with their National league lead dwindling and the Cincinnati Reds first foes to be met in a long home stand. These are the Reds who can take a powerful lot of beating before giving up and who right now are planning on a one-two finish, despite the fact they are in third place in the standings and next to last in hitting and scoring.

* * *

That Deacon Bill McKechnie, manager of the Reds, is a tough customer and a smart, resourceful one in his sedate, genteel way. Faced by the prospect of finishing nowhere because of miserable weakness in the run-producing department, the Deacon dickered his way into a trade with the New York Yankee farms at Newark and Kansas City and has come up with a couple of left-fielders who may mean the difference.

* * *

He doesn't have to worry much about his pitching, and never has had many cares in that respect, but you can't win ball games without runs no matter how good your pitching may be, as the fellow said making a brand new discovery, and McKechnie is seeking to do something about that.

* * *

From Newark he obtained Frank Kelleher, a ball-powderer of the old school, but possibly no great shucks as a major league fielder and something less than a Big Bertha with his throws. From Kansas City, he got title to Eric Tipton, not the hitter Kelleher is and maybe not the ball player, but the two of them must be better than no left fielder, as the Deacon figured it.

* * *

It doesn't seem likely that either or both of these minor leaguers can clinch any pennants for the Reds, but they can make it mighty interesting for the Dodgers at a time like this. All they have to do is stay as hot as they have been. The Deacon seems to think one of them is sure to do it. That's all he asks for the present.

* * *

He also knows that the Dodgers are all banged up with injuries, including one that will keep Pete Reiser, the batting leader, out of commission for about a week. Hugh Casey, the celebrated relief pitcher, has a split finger; Kirby Higbe and John Whitlow Wyatt were knocked out of the box on Sunday when the Cards won a double-header; Manager Leo Durocher is in bad humor, and things in general suddenly have gone sour for the league champions.

* * *

All this the Deacon knows, as he comes to Ebbets Field to make what he hopes will be the stretch drive with good pitching and perhaps better hitting. Safely back in the confines of their own stockade, the Dodgers may go ahead and fatten up on the Reds and then rest from here on.

"Just give me some hitting to go with that pitching"—you can hear the Deacon wailing in his sleep.

Dodgers Whip Pirates

Brooklyn Adds Half Game In Only Contest Yesterday.

By JUDSON BAILEY

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Baseball has been turned into a game of blind man's buff in the last two or three days and the average fan is "it."

Nobody can tell where a ball player will pop up next.

First Buddy Rosar fled the New York Yankees and they got hold of Rollie Hemsley quicker than you could find a Cincinnati-New York train in a time table.

Then Eric McNair, who had been sold by Detroit to Washington and supposedly quit baseball, was sold instead to the Philadelphia Athletics and decided to play some more.

And last night Lefty Larry French, the jovial veteran who usually starts a game about once in ten days, went to the mound in Pittsburgh on one day's rest and hurled a five-hit 5-0 shutout for the Brooklyn Dodgers against the Pirates.

The confusion concerning the Yankee catchers continues to be unrivalled, of course. While everybody was trying to understand how Rosar, who was a member of the American league all-star team and the heir apparent to Bill Dickey's catching mantle, could cold shoulder approximately $12,000 (including his world series share) to become a cop in Buffalo, his wife gave birth to a son.

* * *

Most people probably charged off the whole experience to the vagaries of expectant fathers and Manager Joe McCarthy fined him $250 and ordered him to rejoin the club in Cleveland for a game with the Indians tonight.

The question of how Hemsley, who made only 13 hits in a half a season with Cincinnati in the National league, could make five in one doubleheader with the Yanks remained a mystery.

French's appearance on the mound at Pittsburgh was almost as unexpected. He was supported by a ten-hit attack that included Dolph Camilli's 14th homer of the year and three hits by Joe Medwick as well as by four double plays.

* * *

This increased Brooklyn's National league lead to 6½ games.

All other teams in both major leagues were idle yesterday.

Springfield Beats Canton, 5-3

CANTON — (AP) — Springfield salvaged a game in its five-set series with the Canton Terriers, but it took 10 innings to do it.

The Cardinals triumphed, 5 to 3, in the nightcap of a twin feature after Canton took the opener, 8 to 3, last night. The extra frame win came after two were out on a walk, two singles and an error.

* * *

Erie pounded out 12 hits to defeat Zanesville 5 to 1 in the only other game of the evening. The Dayton at Charleston game was postponed.

COMMISSIONER DIES

GREENVILLE — (INS) — Funeral arrangements were being made today for Roy Ammon, 62, state racing commission inspector since January, who was found dead in the field on a farm near Potsdam in Miami county yesterday. A heart attack was believed to have caused his death.

ATHLETICS GET M'NAIR IN DEAL WITH TIGERS

DETROIT — (U.P.) — Eric McNair, veteran American league infielder, has been sold to the Philadelphia Athletics by the Detroit Tigers in a straight cash transaction, it was announced today.

McNair refused to report to Washington after being traded to the Senators for Relief Pitcher Jack Wilson. But he said he would not hesitate to join Connie Mack, under whom he broke into major league baseball in 1929.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—Laugh of the week: All the tear-jerking "orbits" that were turned loose on Rollie Hemsley, and the curse of drink and such, when the Reds let him go Friday . . . The ink wasn't dry before Rollicking Rollie was kicked right upstairs to the Yanks . . . Treated himself to a mere five hits the first crack outa the box . . . And is on speaking terms with a World Series cut this fall.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Did you know the Red Sox put in a phone call to talk terms with Hemsley about three hours after he left home to join the Yanks . . . And the Tigers were interested, too . . . Who remembers when Chet Laabs, the big league's current clout king, was fanned five times by Bobby Fuller in the last game of the '38 season? . . . 'Tis said that if all the Minnesota Huskies come back from defense jobs to school this year, the Gophers can just about gallop to the Big Ten grid crown again.

Larry French believes he was started too often, at his age, by Jimmy Wilson last year . . . INDIANS ANNOUNCE TIME CHANGES

CLEVELAND — (INS) — The Cleveland Indians today announced the starting times for the week's games and five of the six starting times are different.

Tuesday night—New York at the stadium, 8:45 p. m.; Wednesday—New York at League park, 4 p. m.; Thursday—New York at League park, 4 p. m.; Friday night—Washington at the stadium (two games), 6 p. m. and 8:45 p. m.; Saturday at the stadium, 2 p. m.; Sunday—Washington at the stadium (double header), first game 1:30 p. m.

BOMBER BOXING CARD GETS UNDER WAY

TOLEDO—(INS)—Toledo's bomber for MacArthur boxing show gets under way tonight at Scott high school stadium with Lee Savold, the handsome blond Iowan, favored over Bill Poland of New York in the feature heavyweight scrap.

Herbie Katz, New York light heavyweight, and Shelton Bell, who marked six wins here, meet in another ten-rounder. Former Featherweight Champion Joey Archibald and Benny Goldberg, of Detroit, make up a ten while Pat Comiskey, New Jersey, faces Alfred (Big Boy) Brown in the last of the tens.

ARMSTRONG WINS

SACRAMENTO, Cal. — (U.P.) — Henry Armstrong, former featherweight, lightweight and welterweight champion, scored a technical knockout last night over Joe Ybarra of Oakland, Cal., in the third round of their scheduled 10-round bout. Armstrong weighed 144 and Ybarra 146.

SAVOLD FAVORED

TOLEDO—(U.P.)—Lee Savold of Des Moines, Ia., a leading contender for Joe Louis' heavyweight title, ruled a 2-1 favorite to defeat rugged Bill Poland of New York in their 10-round bout at Scott field tonight.

Savold recently scored a six-round technical knockout over Lou Nova. Poland has beaten tough Harry Bobo of Pittsburgh.

Last night the Reds took a 4-3 beating from their Syracuse farm club in that city. The Chiefs scored two runs to grab the victory in the final inning.

Earl Harrist, pitching his first game for the International league club, held the Reds to four hits, one a homer by Rookie Frank Kelleher.

Yanks, Tribe Clash Tonight

40,000 To See Hemsley On Old Home Grounds.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — When Cleveland's Indians and New York's world champion Yankees meet tonight, the eyes of an expected 40,000 fans will be turned on the catching departments of both teams.

* * *

Local baseball devotees will get their first gander this year at Rollicking Rollie Hemsley, back at his old stamping grounds in the Stadium. But ex-Indian Rollie will be back-stopping for the rival Bronx bombers, unless Buddy Rosar comes out of the Buffalo woods and Manager Joe McCarthy gives him the nod.

* * *

The "Old Homeweek", catcher Gene Desautles, out with a broken leg since May 10, will be back in uniform warming up Redskin pitchers.

Probable pitchers in the opener of the three-game series will be Vernon "Lefty" Gomez and veteran Al Smith.

Lehman Leads At Tam O'Shanter

CHICAGO — (U.P.) — Johnny Lehman, Chicago insurance salesman who spent the best years of his golfing career chasing stars like Bobby Jones, "Sandy" Somerville, Francis Ouimet, and Lawson Little, found himself in the role of pace-setter today in the all-America amateur tournament at the Tam O'Shanter course.

As the bulky field of 210 competitors went into the final half of the 36-hole qualifying test for this war-year successor of the national amateur meet, Lehman led with a sub-par round of 71.

* * *

On Lehman's heels with even par cards of 72 were five players. They were Johnny Goodman, the former national open and amateur king of Omaha, Neb.; Billy Gilbert of Cincinnati, O., former Big Ten champion; Frankie Stranahan of Toledo, O.; Bob Cochran of St. Louis, and Henry Bowbeer of Chicago.

ENTER SANDLOT TOURNEY

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Cleveland will be represented in the National Baseball federation tournament at Youngstown Sept. 12, but indications today pointed to the fact that not the best sandlot squad will get the honor. Since the city-wide trophy for Class A teams is not awarded until about Sept. 20, it seemed certain that one of the squads not in the running for the trophy will compete in the tourney.

Galion Team Will Meet Colored Champs Tomorrow

The Galion baseball club of the Ohio State semi-pro league steps out of its class Wednesday at 7 p. m. when it plays host to the popular Kansas City Monarchs, champions of the Colored American league, in Galion.

The Monarchs are to colored baseball what the New York Yankees are to the American league ....the best team and the hottest drawing card. The fact that the Monarchs have played before nearly a million fans this season indicates their ability. You simply can't attract those crowds unless you have something....and the Monarchs have it!

On two different occasions the Monarchs have beaten Dizzy Dean and his Major league All Stars this season. They come to Galion direct from Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, where on Tuesday night they meet the Homestead Grays in the first night game ever played by colored teams in the Pittsburgh National league park.

All of the Monarch regulars will play a complete game in Galion, which means fans will see "Bucky" O'Neill, flashy fielding first sacker, "Steel Arm" Green, power hitting catcher, Jesse Williams, brilliant shortstop, outfielder Willard Brown, the league's leading home run hitter and Ted Strong, All-American in both baseball and basketball, among others.

Galion is expected to be loaded to the hilt in an effort to beat this world famous colored team which has won 79 games, losing four this season.

3 Teams Advance In Park League

Play was fast and furious in the Mansfield public parks senior league last night with Johns park, Liberty and Prospect parks emerging victorious.

* * *

Johns Park downed a fighting John Todd park team at the former's field by a 13 to 9 score but the Todds hung up 13 hits, two more than the winners. P. Frontz got himself three hits to lead the Todd attack which fell short.

* * *

Liberty park took Maple Lake into camp by a 6 to 1 score with C. Frank allowing the Maple Lakers only four hits while his own teammates collected nine off of Foster.

* * *

The Blue Goose team had little better luck against the Prospect park nine, losing by an 8 to 4 score. Prospect rung up eight hits while their hurler, D. Berry, held Blue Goose to two.

Red Birds Gain On Kansas City

Association Teams to Stage All-Star Game Thursday.

(By Associated Press)

Teams of the American association will take a furlough from their pennant battle after tonight's games so the all-star game can be staged Thursday at Kansas City. And for the league-leading Blues the respite comes just in the nick of time.

The Kansas City team found its margin over the Columbus Red Birds cut to a game and a half after last night's action. While the Blues were losing a battle of home runs to Minneapolis, 7 to 5, the Red Birds were closing up by beating Indianapolis, 3 to 2.

If Kansas City loses again tonight and Columbus wins, that lead will be reduced to one-half game, but the Red Birds can't possibly overhaul the leaders before the all-star game.

Columbus was rolling along behind a string of eight shutout innings by its Bill Crouch. The Red Birds held a 3 to 0 lead over Indianapolis going into the last of the ninth only to have the Tribe put on a two-run uprising which took two Columbus relief hurlers to stifle.

The Milwaukee Brewers, early leaders in the association race, hung tightly to third place by thumping St. Paul, 10 to 5.

The Louisville Colonels, who took a double-header from Toledo Sunday, made it three straight over the Mud Hens with a 13 to 3 decision last night.

GALION HAS EASY WIN OVER FOSTORIA NINE

In a slugfest led by the long-distance hitting of Ernst, Galion had an easy time with Fostoria Sunday, winning out 14-3. Ernst got two home runs, one with two men on base.

Scott allowed Fostoria no hits until the sixth inning and the JayCees lined up an early lead to coast to an easy victory.

Federal Reserve Reports Halt In Decline in Loans To Commerce.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Further modest improvement was registered for leading stocks in today's market.

Up fractions at a quiet opening were American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Sears Roebuck, General Electric, Bethlehem Steel and U.S. Rubber.

Market Analysts derived mild encouragement from the federal reserve summary disclosing that the lengthy decline in loans to commerce, industry and agriculture apparently had halted.

Trend students noted the preliminary estimate of the federal reserve bank of New York indicating department store sales in this district last week were unchanged on dollar volume from the comparable period a year ago.

'RUBBER COWS' KEEP WATCH AT PANAMA CANAL

Barrage Balloons Contain Many Secret Devices For Snaring Planes.

(By INS Staff Correspondent)

SOMEWHERE IN THE CANAL ZONE—"They may be just a bunch of balloons tie in a length of cable to casual observers but to me they are a group of the most cantankerous, unpredictable, delicate Prima Donnas imaginable."

The man was speaking of the balloon barrage which rides day and night over the vital installations of the Panama Canal Zone. His words were those of irritation but the tone was one of genuine affection for the speaker, Lieutenant Colonel Horace S. Van Voast, of Schenectady, N. Y., is keenly enthusiastic about his job as "nurse to a flock of rubber cows."

"Rubber cow" is a term applied not only to blimps but to this captive craft which, as the colonel explained it, "denies the area to enemy aircraft."

The first barrage balloons inched their way tentatively into the tropical skies of Panama shortly after the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor. The installation was light and purely experimental for the British, who had enjoyed unusual success with such weapons in England, never had used them in the tropics, believing the difficulties to be insurmountable.

Since those early days, however, coast artillerymen have improvised, improved and invented gadgets to perfect their installation, until the balloons which sway over vital Canal Zone points today are the densest barrage to be found anywhere on earth.

Their numbers, location and spacing are a military secret, even though they can be seen for miles around and are, without doubt, known to the enemy through their agents.

But while its existence is obvious to everyone, there are elements in the balloon barrage which cannot be determined from a distant view and a nasty surprise awaits any enemy flier who is willing to chance shearing his wings on the stout, almost invisible mooring cables.

The barrage balloons are a sixth weapon of the U. S. coast artillery in Panama under the command of Major General H. R. Oldfield. Any visiting Axis forces will have to contend also with fixed seacoast guns, tractor-drawn heavy guns, anti-aircraft guns, railroad artillery and controlled mines.

Then there is another little arrangement to welcome low flying torpedo planes which has the self-explanatory name of the "killer net"—an ingenius device which will mangle in satisfactory manner any such plane which gets near enough its objective for effective fire.

"Of course the efficiency of barrage balloons, like anti-aircraft fire, is not to be measured in the number of enemy planes destroyed, but in its efficiency of denying the area to the enemy above the objective," explained Lieutenant Colonel W. J. Wolfe, of Boston, who is in charge of all of the balloon installations.

"It is amazing how each of these balloons, so apparently alike, develop their own personalities," Colonel Van Voast observed. "Most of them have been named by the members of the crews handling them."

Samples of some of their names: "Rosita," "Dumbo," "Mae West," "Gulliver," "Annie," "Long John Silver," and "Betsy." In the folds of "Betsy" a small rive bird has installed his family in a nest and they nonchalantly ride the big bag up and down for thousands of feet as the altitude of the barrage is varied.

TWO FACE LONG PRISON TERMS

Isolation Leaders Convicted of Attempting to Hamper U. S. War Effort.

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES — Robert Noble, head of the Friends of Progress, isolationist organization, who was convicted on sedition and conspiracy charges July 11, today had been sentenced to five years in federal prison.

Ellis O. Jones, former Ohio resident, his associate leader and organizer of the National Copperheads, was sentenced to four years on identical charges. The prison will be designated later by the United States attorney general.

Federal Judge Ralph E. Jenney sentenced the two men after denying their plea for probation.

Noble and Jones were charged with making statements at public meetings of the Friends of Progress designed to hamper the war effort. Noble was accused of describing the war as "phoney" and saying the "General MacArthur's stand in the Philippines is not bravery but damned foolishness."

Defense Attorney John Barta said that an appeal probably would be taken.

Noble and Jones face a maximum penalty of 20 years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine each.
